MOLOKAI TO GO; LEPROSY CURE WINS

Success of Chaulmoogra Oil So Pronounced As to Cause Doctors to Look For Abandonment of Colony

Nearly 300 Discharged As Cured At U. S. Hospital, Says Professor at U. C. Affiliated Colleges in S. F.

With the release of nineteen more patients from the Molokai leper settlement, in the Hawaiian Islands, as the result of chaulmoogra oil treatments, local medical authorities asserted today that, although this specific has apparently failed as a supposed cure for tuberculosis, its effectiveness in the treatment of leprosy is now established beyond doubt.

The nineteen patients have so far improved that they are now ready to be paroled and returned to their homes, according to advices received here today. In each case the improvement is attributed entirely to the administering of the chaulmoogra oil specific by government physicians at Molokai.

ABANDONMENT OF COLONY FORESEEN.

Abandonment of the leper colony on the island of Molokai, where for more than half a century lepers have been isolated from the rest of the world, is looked for in the near future as the result of the success of chaulmoogra oil in the treatment of the disease.

It has been nearly three years, according to information received from Honolulu, since a person suffering from leprosy has been sent to Molokai. All new patients are now treated at the leprosy investigation station at Kailahi, a suburb of Honolulu.

Between 250 and 300 lepers have been discharged from the Molokai settlement as apparently cured, since the discovery and adoption of the present form of the chaulmoogra oil specific four or five years ago. This was the statement today of Dr. E. L. Walker, professor of tropical medicine in the Hooper Foundation, at the University of California, affiliated colleges in San Francisco.

Only a comparatively few relapses have occurred among the patients dismissed, he said.

Prior to the discovery of the chaulmoogra oil treatment in its present form, cures of leprosy were only scattering, according to Dr. Walker.

OIL NOT SUCCESSFUL IN TUBERCULOSIS.

For a while it was hoped by medical men that tuberculosis might be treated with chaulmoogra oil as successfully as leprosy. Application of the specific to patients suffering from the "white plague," however, has had results so unsatisfactory that it virtually has been abandoned, Dr. Walker declared.

Dr. Arthur L. Dean, president of the College of Hawaii, is the man who discovered the present method of preparing and administering chaulmoogra oil in the treatment of leprosy. He arrived at the present formula, after years of research, about 1917.

Although Dr. Dean made an independent discovery, formulas in many respects similar to his were hit upon by other experimenters with chaulmoogra oil in other parts of the world, at approximately the same time. One of these was Sir Leonard Rogers, who, according to Dr. Walker, has achieved good results in the treatment of leprosy in India with the sodium salts derived from the oil.

The oil, which is obtained from the seeds of a tree peculiar to India and used in the treatment of leprosy since prehistoric times, Dr. Walker pointed out today, is the most modern derivatives of it, such as are being used by Dr. Dean and Sir Leonard Rogers, were arrived at.

Dr. Dean's method of applying the specific is by injection into the arm, and it has been proved effective in lessening the ravages of the disease at almost any stage, but its value as a cure is great, but when it can be administered during the early periods of leprosy, according to Dr. Walker.

MOLOKAI ONE OF QUICKEST OF SETTLEMENTS.

The hoped-for abandonment of Molokai as a leper colony, if it takes place, will mark the end of what is probably the strangest community that has ever existed. Since its foundation more than fifty years ago, the colony's only inhabitants have been lepers and those in attendance upon them. Many of the latter ultimately became afflicted with the disease.

Molokai is an island lying between Maui and Molai in the Hawaiian group, and has an area of 261 square miles. In 1900 its population, consisting entirely of the members of the leper settlement, was 2500.

KANSAS PLEDGED TO EXPEL KLAN

KU KLUX STANDS WITH BACK TO WALL FOLLOWING STRING OF RECENT OUTRAGES.

By J. F. BEAMAN

United Press Staff Correspondent.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 30.—The Ku Klux Klan stands with its back to the wall in Kansas today.

The machinery of the state government has started into action against the organization.

Klan councils throughout the state were reported to have been called into session in orders issued today to formulate plans for a fight for existence.

Governor Henry Allen, who, on the eve of an election, declared war on the Klan, was in Western Kansas today, carrying his appeal to the people, to rid the state of the White Caps. At Topeka, Attorney General Hopkins was in private conference with state executives, preparatory to drafting resolutions drastically curbing operations of the klans.

Action to expel from Kansas every official of the Klan, already is under way. Governor Allen himself admitted before leaving for the western part of the state.

Indications are that, if the crusade against the organization acquires the anticipated momentum in Kansas, it will spread through Oklahoma and Texas. Joint action by officials of three states, or at least the element opposed to the K. K. K., was predicted today at Topeka.

A series of raids, kidnappings and floggings, attributed by Governor Allen's investigators to the K. K. K., led to his unprecedented step in pledging a state against a secret order.

The whipping of Mayor Schriener of Liberty, Kas., some days ago, was according to Allen and Hopkins, the final outrage and one that "necessitated prompt and drastic action."

While Allen was making his initial speech against the Klan Saturday night at Coffeyville, 14,000 klansmen were crowding every inch of space in convention hall here to hear anti-Catholic speakers.

New-Type Maskers Start Fatal Fight

HENRIETTA, Okla., Oct. 30.—County authorities today were attempting a roundup of members of the "True Blue," a masked organization, following the killing of one man and what probably will prove to be the fatal injury of another during an attempt to kidnap Constable Thomas Bogue.

The raiders were dressed in blue denim, with blue masks over their faces, police said. Bogue was attempting a kidnapping. A gun fight started when Bogue refused to obey the demand of a committee from the "True Blue" that he leave the show and accompany them to an automobile waiting in front.

LIVING WAGE RULE PLAYED BY GOMPERS

Federation Head Opens War to Abolish Board As Result of Decision That Plea of Railmen Is Impracticable

Officials Set Selves Above Congress and Stigmatize Intelligence of Lawmakers, Declares Labor Leader

By KARL M. ELISH.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—In summarily throwing out labor's petition for rates of pay based upon the principle of the "living wage," the Railway Labor Board has "automatically" set itself above Congress, the power that created it, and has stigmatized the intelligence of those who made the law, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared here today in a stinging attack on the board's decision.

LABOR AIMS AT DEATH OF BOARD.

"The sooner the Railway Labor Board is abolished and we depend once more on the good will and negotiations between railroad management and railroad workers the better it will be for all concerned," the veteran labor head told the International News Service.

What retaliatory tactics will be adopted by organized labor, if any, Gompers declined to say. It is known, however, that the "living wage" decision will afford new ammunition for the attack on the board which is to be launched by its enemies soon after Congress reassembles. Labor and its friends are aiming at nothing less than the death of the board.

AWARD DECLARED UNJUST RULING.

"The law provides that the awards of the board shall be 'just and reasonable,'" Gompers said. "Surely anything which is below a 'living wage' is not just and reasonable."

"To say to a man with a wife and child that he cannot be accorded a living wage because the railroads and ultimately the public will have to meet the bill—that does not satisfy him, nor is it 'just and reasonable.'"

"As a matter of fact, the opinion of the majority of the board is a stigma on the intelligence of the Congress which created it."

Board Rules Theory Would Wreck U.S.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30 (By the Associated Press).—Attacking the theory of the "living wage" as a basis for determining the wages of railroad workers, the public and railroad group of the United States Railroad Labor Board, in an opinion made public last night, declared that such a course, if carried to its legitimate conclusion, would wreck every railroad in the United States and, if extended to other industries, would carry them into economic ruin.

The opinion, in the form of a rejoinder to a dissenting opinion filed by H. O. Wharton, labor member, in the recent decision increasing the pay of maintenance of way employees 2 cents an hour, declared that if employees were granted a 72 to 75 cents minimum wage for common labor with corresponding differentials for other classes, an increase of 125.7 per cent in the nation's railroad wage bill would be necessary. This, the opinion said, would add $3,119,952,337 to the annual payroll, bringing it to $5,399,445,993, which would mean, it added, an annual deficit to the carriers of $2,241,639,518.

Even if the 48-cent minimum wage requested by maintenance of way workers were granted and corresponding differentials were made, the opinion said, an increase of 50.45 per cent in wages would be necessary, adding $1,249,399,394 to the annual wage bill of the roads, bringing it up to $3,725,884,540, thus forcing the carriers to face an annual deficit of $3,778,125.

The phrase "living wage" was termed in the opinion as "a bit of malicious phraseology, well calculated to deceive the unthinking." "If the contentions were that the board should establish a 'living wage' the majority would readily accede to the proposition," the opinion said, "and as a matter of

Dr. C. W. Eliot Backs Candidacy of "Dry"

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, and a group of other supporters of Woodrow Wilson policies, have signed a statement endorsing the candidacy of John A. Nichols, prohibition candidate for United States senator, Nichols favors the United States entering the League of Nations.

Filipinos Offer Resolution for New Republic

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 30.—(By The Associated Press).—Formation of the Republic of the Philippines is sought by a concurrent resolution introduced in the Legislature today with the backing of a majority of the members.

The resolution, which is supported by the combined Collectivists and Nationalists parties, asks the Congress of the United States to authorize the Philippine Legislature to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of adopting a constitution for the future independence of the islands, and to determine what relations shall exist between the Philippines and the United States. Congress further is asked to authorize election of officials who will assume the duties and functions of the independent government.

A number of other resolutions favoring independence also have been introduced by individual members of the Senate and House.

ENTIRE BLOCK FOR HOSPITAL CERTAIN

Action By Supervisors Assures Enough Land For Highland Institution.

Alameda county will come into possession of the entire block comprising the site of the new Highland Hospital of Alameda county by action taken by the Board of Supervisors today authorizing the purchase of five pieces of land at a total cost of $32,475.

Acquisition of these pieces of land was found necessary to carry out the complete plans for the new hospital which is being constructed at a cost of $2,500,000.

When the county, originally purchased by the county, the entire block was not acquired, several pieces of land being left in private hands. When it became evident that the county should have these pieces, options were secured quickly to prevent any sales in prices.

Those from whom the five pieces of property are being purchased are: M. L. Hering, $24,675; Charlotte S. McLaughlin, $4500; C. V. Keenan and Louisa A. Keenan, $1050; M. L. Hering, $1600, and R. E. French, $750.

The supervisors gave notice of their intention to hold board meetings at 9 o'clock instead of 10 o'clock every Monday morning, except holidays, by directing District Attorney Extra Decoto to prepare such an ordinance. When officially adopted, the ordinance will have to be advertised for thirty days before the board can meet an hour earlier.

Supporting a letter from the Armistice Day committee, Bester Robinson appeared before the board requesting an appropriation of $300 to help defray expenses of the celebration to be held in Lakeside park. Robinson pointed out that last year the Armistice Day celebration cost $1500, but this year the total expense would be $900, the other $600 coming from an appropriation by the city of Oakland. The request was referred to the committee of the whole to determine whether sufficient money remained in the entertainment fund.

Communications from Colonel Herbert Deakney, United States army engineer, gave notice that the city and county of San Francisco had made application to construct three miles across Newark Slough, three miles southwest of Newark, and another across Dumbarton Straits, six miles east of Redwood City. As the first project concerns Alameda county, it was referred to District Attorney Decoto for a report.

X-Ray Discloses Player's Neck Safe

BERKELEY, Oct. 30.—It was announced at noon today at the University Infirmary that an X-ray examination of "Pat" Adams, University of Southern California football half back, showed he was not suffering from a broken neck, as was previously thought possible.

Adams was hurt in the game with the University of California freshmen here. His condition grew worse yesterday, and today it became so critical that physicians ordered the X-ray examination.

Ex-Pastor Nabbed As Jail Fugitive

McLESTER, Okla., Oct. 30.—The Rev. J. C. Trotter, former pastor of the Halesville, Okla., Methodist church, and financial secretary of Brooks Institute at Halesville, who escaped from jail here last month while awaiting trial on a charge of embezzling church moneys and funds of the institute, has been arrested at Alamosa, Colo., where he was working under the name of Oscar Kline in the railroad shops, according to word received by authorities here today.

SLAIN CLERIC EXONERATED BY BISHOP

Montana Ecclesiast Says Woman Fired Fatal Bullets When Her Attention Was Spurned By Pastor

Mother Takes Up Fight in Effort to Prove Daughter Is Innocent; Pistol Forms Clew in Case. She Says

HAVRE, Mont., Oct. 30.—That Mrs. Margaret Carleton deliberately attempted to win the Rev. Leonard J. Christler, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church of this city, from his wife, and that falling she shot the minister and then herself, is the belief of Bishop Frederick Faber, head of the diocese of Montana, according to a statement made by him today.

"I believe, as a result of the investigation I have made of the tragedy which occurred in the Christler home early Friday and after questioning those who know about it, that if this woman had been able to work her will on Mr. Christler he would be alive today, faithful to his wife, but still living," the bishop's statement declared.

Regarding the investigation of accusations involving the names of Christler and Mrs. Carleton which he conducted a year and a half ago, Bishop Faber said:

"No formal charges ever were filed against Mr. Christler. Letters came to me containing statements detrimental to Mr. Christler's character. I came to Havre and insisted that the persons making the accusations present their testimony. When they learned that their evidence was to be taken down by a shorthand reporter, they would not testify."

"I set a date for a hearing, and later when I could stay no longer in Havre for that purpose, the vestry of Mr. Christler's church fixed another date, but the testimony was never given."

"I found evidence which made me believe that the accusations were actuated by animosity on the part of the persons making them, due to activities of Mr. Christler, which had nothing to do with Mrs. Carleton."

"Mr. Christler was a big man, physically and mentally, an outdoors man, and he did many things in novel and unusual ways. He had many activities for the benefit of his fellow men which were outside ordinary church work, and many people were to be found who were willing to find fault with him."

MOTHER DEFENDS NAME OF DAUGHTER

HAVRE, Mont., Oct. 30 (By the Associated Press).—While Mrs. Carleton is on an eastbound train, accompanying the body of her slain husband, Rev. Leonard J. Christler, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, and known as the "bishop of all outdoors," Mrs. Joseph Pyle, mother of Mrs. Margaret Carleton, whose body was found beside that of Christler, is attempting to prove that her daughter did not commit the murder and suicide.

A coroner's jury brought in a verdict early Sunday morning, stating that Mrs. Carleton killed Christler and then shot herself. The tragedy occurred early Friday morning.

Mrs. Christler left with the body of her husband for Waterloo, N. Y., early Sunday morning.

In spite of the coroner's jury verdict, Mrs. Pyle has employed an attorney and is endeavoring to find evidence that will prove her daughter did not commit the crime.

"I do not believe Margaret did it," said Mrs. Pyle shortly after her arrival in Havre from her home in Butte. "I shall not be satisfied until I find who owned the gun." Her reference was to a 38-caliber revolver found in the hand of Mrs. Carleton when the bodies were discovered.

"Margaret owned and carried, for six years, a small 22-caliber revolver," continued Mrs. Pyle. "Had this weapon been found in her hand instead of a larger one, it might be reasonable to take that as evidence that she fired the shot."

The smaller revolver was found in Mrs. Carleton's handbag following the tragedy.

Mrs. Pyle is now engaged in placing together bits of a torn letter found in the waste basket in her daughter's room and which she declares is in Christler's handwriting.

INVESTIGATION FOR MINISTER ADMITTED.

That Mrs. Carleton had an infatuation for the minister is admitted virtually by everyone connected with the case, including Mrs. Pyle.

A letter said to be from Frank E. Carleton, dated in California August 25, says in part:

"Dear Margaret: I have been (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Hobo Delegates, In Convention In Ohio, Split

Purse of the Conclave Follows "Millionaire Hobo" When He Is Unseated.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 30.—There has been a parting of the ways and, instead of one national "hobo" organization, there now are two—aristocratic and plebeian.

Naturally, the "aristocrats" represent the money group which rides on the Pullman cushions to the annual conventions, while the "plebeians" roll in on the rods.

The parting came when the annual convention of the International Brotherhood Welfare Association assembled here, refused to recognize the credentials of Dr. J. Eads Howe, of St. Louis, the "millionaire hobo." Howe was declared not to be the real thing, because of his wealth. But Howe did not leave the convention hall alone.

With him is said to have gone the convention's purse besides a majority of the delegates, including those from Chicago, Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Denver, Oklahoma City, Kansas City, St. Louis, Buffalo and Muncie. Cleveland and New York delegates who had gone with Howe Saturday, returned to the "regulars" today. While Howe today expressed the hope that all differences will be smoothed out soon and the two factions reunited, at the "regular" camp, it was stated that the International Brotherhood Welfare Association is through with Dr. Howe, and his "philanthropic ideas and straight front methods."

Howe's followers say the delegates fail to realize what great work he is doing among them.

HENRY FORD'S SON DODGES QUIZZERS

Scion of Auto Millionaire, Slipping Into S. F., Silent On Father's Candidacy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—Edsel Ford, son of Henry Ford, and himself one of the heads of the Ford Motor Company, slipped quietly into San Francisco this morning. Unlike his father, he avoided all interviews. Ford arrived in a special car attached to an early train, reaching the Third and Townsend street depot before 9 o'clock.

While newspaper men and photographers expected him to step from his private car and leave the railroad yard by the usual exit, he out-manuevered them. Going through the kitchen of the car, he left via Fourth street, and was whisked in an automobile to the company's Harrison street plant, under the guidance of J. V. Lund, the factory representative here.

Ford sent word that he might have a statement to make tomorrow, but declined absolutely to talk for publication today. Members of his party registered at the St. Francis hotel.

Yesterday in Los Angeles Ford refused to affirm or deny the report that his father, Henry Ford, would be a candidate for the presidency at the next election, but he did take occasion to deny a Wall Street rumor that his father is worth $2,000,000,000 cash. He also denied that a new Ford plant would be built within the near future in Los Angeles.

Regarding his father's candidacy, Ford stated that any comment on that subject should come from his father, and in reference to the proposed new Los Angeles Ford factory to serve the Pacific coast, he said the time for it had not arrived.

Hundreds Fight Fire Menacing Knoxville

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 30.—What was first considered as an ordinary woods fire and not believed to have menacing qualities, has grown into the most serious forest conflagration in the history of Knoxville county, and this morning is entirely unchecked within a mile of the Knoxville city limits.

Many hundreds of acres of valuable timber land have been burned over and scores of homes are in the immediate path of the blaze. All efforts to combat the flames have been futile and today hundreds of men are fighting desperately to save property, which now seems doomed.

New Italian Premier Will Hold Two Portfolios in Government; General Diaz Is War Minister

PARLIAMENT IS TO DISSOLVE

ROME, Oct. 30.—(By The Associated Press).—The new Italian Cabinet of Benito Mussolini was announced this evening as follows: Premier, Minister of the Interior and Foreign Affairs, Benito Mussolini; Minister of War, General Armando Diaz; Minister of Marine, Vice-Admiral Thaon di Revel; Minister of the Treasury, Professor Luigi Einaudi, (Nationalist); Minister of Industry, Theophile Rosi (Nationalist); Minister of Finance, Signor de Stefani, (Fascist); Minister of the Colonies, Luigi Federsoni, (Nationalist); Minister of Justice, Aldo Oviglio, (Fascist); Minister of Education, Signor Gentile (Remocrat); Minister of Public Works, Signor Carnazza, (Nationalist).

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(By International News Service).—The international program of the Fascist government at Rome will prevent Italian fulfillment of the Washington conference agreement for limitation of naval disarmaments, said a Rome despatch to the Midi today. The Fascist demand unlimited liberty in shipbuilding.

MILAN, Oct. 30.—Twelve persons were wounded here today in rioting about the office of the newspaper Avanti. Members of the Fascisti and Socialists were engaged. Hundreds of Nationalists later attacked the plant of the newspaper Secolo, wrecking it.

Fascisti Regime Is First to War On Communism

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(By Radio to International News Service).—Italy is the first European country since the war to establish a government aimed directly against Communism and against a possible alliance of Communism and labor. In addition to its extreme nationalism, the Fascist Cabinet is expected to maintain a "military" police, as virtually all the leaders and members of the Fascists were great war veterans.

ROME, Oct. 30.—(By Associated Press).—The newspaper Azione Socialista today contains the following:

"We learn that all the members of the Communist party were informed last evening that that party is ceasing its operation today and all its members are to be released from party discipline. 'It is believed,' adds the newspaper, 'that as a result of the decision the Communist deputies will resign their seats.'"

Three Die, Six Hurt By Flames in Home

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 30 (By International News Service).—Three members of Walter Ridgley's family were burned to death today and six were injured, one seriously, when his home at Knobley mountain, W. Va., near here, was destroyed by fire.

The dead are Mrs. Martha Ridgley, 36; Jesse, 11, and Elmer, 3.

The injured were: Ridgley, three daughters, mother-in-law and his father. The origin of the fire is not known.

Bomb Wrecks Car In Railroad Yards

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 30.—A bomb, estimated to have contained one or two sticks of dynamite, exploded in an empty steel coal car in the Santa Fe yards here at 8:55 o'clock this morning. The explosion tore a hole through the steel bottom of the car and broke the windows of a caboose standing on an adjoining track. A car of dynamite standing seven cars away was not damaged. For several weeks there had been no acts of violence incident to the shopcrafts strike.

Three Stealing Ride Crushed to Death

CASPER, Wyo., Oct. 30.—Three men were crushed to death and two others injured when the car of lumber in which they were beating their way on the Burlington freight No. 76, eastbound, was converted into a death trap by the sudden shifting of the lumber while the train was switching last night at Powder River station, forty miles west of Casper.

McCumber Not to Sponsor Bonus Bill

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Senator Porter J. McCumber will not sponsor a new soldiers' bonus bill at the coming session of congress "unless there is a change of heart in the senate," he told International News Service this afternoon. McCumber arrived here on route to New England for a health trip.

Rome today was virtually cut off from all communication with the remainder of the country. ## Young Italy Will Take Government

By CAMILLO GIANTURRA, United Press Staff Correspondent

ROME, Oct. 30.—(By Associated Press.)—The Fascist government, led by Benito Mussolini, marks the end of the regime of twenty years of statesmen of the old school and is the advent of young blood in Italian affairs.

For the past twenty years the kingdom of Victor Emmanuel has been governed by men who have practically lost all notions as to the meaning of democracy.

Every cabinet made a series of concessions to the radical elements. During the war, all sorts of impossible promises from the free distribution of land to the enfranchisement of the illiterate, were made to the Italians in the trenches.

Obviously, most of the promises could not be kept which caused general dissatisfaction throughout the country and resulted in many Socialist victories at the polls in 1919.

In 1920, the Socialists, having had their first taste of power, occupied many industrial plants throughout the land.

TURNING POINT MARKED. This marked the turning point in the situation and was the beginning of a reaction on the part of the conservative elements which culminated in the occupation of Rome by the Fascists.

Strictly speaking, the present revolution only means that the old governing classes personified by Giolitti, Orlando and Salandria, which in twenty years created

Slain Woman's Daughter Pleads for State Action

By JOHN L. SPIVAK, International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 30.—With the despairing feature that the murder of her mother is being investigated with an eye to the political effect it will have on the forthcoming election in this state, Charlotte Mills, pretty 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, choir singer, who was murdered with Rev. Dr. Edward Wheeler Hall on the night of September 18, today issued a public appeal to citizens of New Jersey to bring pressure on the governor and all other public officials, to force an immediate arrest of persons who are held to be guilty. She also sent a vigorous telegram to Governor

Edwards of this state asking for an explanation of the delay in arresting "suspected" persons. Miss Mills asserted that although the state had at first "bungled" its investigation, Deputy Attorney General Mott, in charge of the investigation, had since stated he had sufficient evidence upon which to seek indictments. "If this is true," declared Miss Mills, "then why has nothing been done to bring about the arrest of the guilty person or persons?" The girl's message to Governor Edwards begged him to intercede personally and to urge action against those suspected.

Levathian bureaucracy and after the war squandered billions by costly concessions, have gone.

It is expected that drastic measures will be taken by Mussolini to balance the national budget and to cut out all non-essential expenditures.

Unless all indications fail, the Fascists, who are not bound by traditions, obligations or party affiliations, will endeavor to give the country a sane, economic government, including a cabinet of the most able and patriotic elements.

Soldiers Barring Roads to Rome

ROME, Oct. 30.—(By The Associated Press.)—Soldiers in the king's uniform early today were lining the road from Civitavecchia to Rome through the Apennines, and barred by fixed bayonets protected the entrances to Allumiere, Tofa, Manziana and Bracciano, twenty miles northwest of Rome.

Railway communication was still interrupted between Civitavecchia and Rome. Within a radius of fifty miles from Rome sixty thousand Fascists were encamped overnight, many sending lorries into the capital for bread. The king's troops permitted these lorries to pass.

Both regulars and Fascists bore themselves with marked graciousness towards foreigners, doing their utmost to alleviate the inconvenience caused by the prevalence of something near martial law. As an automobile, one of the occupants of which was the correspondent, approached the town of Bracciano last evening, a bright young corporal jumped aboard the car to escort it safely across the town. The citizens, under the impression the occupants were under arrest, peered them until the corporal explained the passengers were American.

icans. Then the crowd cheered, crying "Viva America!"

One incident, typical of the attitude of large sections of the people, occurred along the route to Rome when a group of shepherds forgot their flocks momentarily and cheered as a party of black-shirted Fascists marched along the road, shouting "Viva Fascisti!"

Fascisti Ordered To Halt Reprisals

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(By The Associated Press.)—The Rome commander of the Fascists, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Rome today, has issued a manifesto ordering the fascist squads in the city not to carry out any reprisals. The manifesto says:

"All conflicts are not only useless but harmful to the Fascist cause. All Fascist squads are therefore ordered to maintain absolute calm, order and discipline. All individual actions and initiatives are absolutely prohibited.

"As Signor Mussolini has already been entrusted with the forming of a cabinet, he must be considered henceforth as responsible for the state ministers and parliament. Therefore every act against the government institutions is an act of rebellion against Mussolini."

JURORS CONVENE TO HEAR DETAILS IN DUAL SLAYING

Eye-Witness to Church Tragedy Challenges Widow to Deny Presence.

By GERALD P. OVERTON, United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 30.—The grand jury convened at Somerville today, ready to receive a request from Prosecutor Mott for indictments in the Hall-Mills murder case.

The prosecutor gave no indication of what move he would make. Further delay was considered likely in view of the following overnight developments:

1. Challenge of Mrs. Jane Gibson to a prominent New Brunswick woman to prove the latter did not witness the murder.

2. Report that a new witness who heard Mrs. Mills' dying screams has been discovered.

3. Discovery of two cartridges—not discharged—near the spot where the bodies were found.

4. Alleged attempt by a negro to sell Dr. Hall's watch, which has been missing since the tragedy.

Witness Defies Widow to Deny

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Jane Gibson, pleader and self-styled eye witness of the double murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, has demanded an opportunity to confront Mrs. Hall and challenge her to say that she was not present at the slaying of her husband, and did not return later and arrange his clothes and glasses.

Mrs. Hall, through her attorney, has emphatically denied that she was on the Phillips farm on the night that her husband was shot to death with his choir singer.

LOST FOOTWEAR PROMPTS RETURN.

Mrs. Gibson explained that it was more than mere curiosity which prompted her to return to the Phillips farm after she alleges she witnessed the murders. She declared that in her original statement to the authorities she explained that she lost one of her moccasins and that it was while she was hunting for it that she saw the double slaying and rode away on her mule at once.

WOMAN IN GRAY SEEN NEAR BODY.

Not until she reached home, Mrs. Gibson said, did she realize that the presence of her footwear on the farm near the scene of the murder might lead investigators to connect her with the crime. She immediately saddled her mule, she said, and returned to see a woman in a gray coat bending over the body of the slain rector.

Wife Tells Reason For Slaying Rival

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Pale from illness and suspense, Mrs. Catherine Rosier, 22, slayer of her husband, Oscar Rosier, and his stenographer, Mildred "Jerry" Reckitt, took the witness stand in her own defense today.

She is on trial on a charge of murdering the girl. Assisted by two court attendants, Mrs. Rosier, frail and nervous, passed the jury box with downcast eyes. She had great difficulty in composing herself and answered questions asked by her attorney in a weak voice.

She testified that Arthur Rosier, brother of the slain man, told her that her husband was kept at his office by a sweetheart and not by work. Mrs. Rosier then broke into sobs and rested her head on Court Officer Adamson's chest throughout the rest of her testimony.

Pastor, on Trial As Slayer, Sleeps

STATESBORO, Ga., Oct. 30.—A jury was selected and taking of testimony started here today in the case of the Rev. Elliott Padrick, the youthful Methodist minister charged with the murder of his wife and her mother, Mrs. M. B. Mixon, whose bodies were found on the road between Dover and Olio, on June 19, last. It is expected the case will go to the jury tomorrow.

Padrick entered court this morning, Bible in hand, and took a seat at the table with his counsel, where he adjusted his chair in a comfortable position and went to sleep. He continued to slumber throughout the selection of a jury. Before court opened he told friends he intended to preach a sermon to the jury as his defense statement, taking as a text the passage from the scriptures forbidding the coveting of "thy neighbor's wife," and the seventh commandment.

County Speed Cops All Down But One

NILES, Oct. 30.—Only one speed cop is left on duty in Alameda county since the injury yesterday of Traffic Officer Leon Solon, who is suffering from compound fracture of the right leg sustained when his cycle crashed with an auto while he was chasing a speeder. Peter Wright, of Livermore, who is now looking after the speeders in the county, just recently left the hospital recovered from injuries received while on duty. Louis Elke, of San Leandro, the other unit of the force, had his leg broken a week ago yesterday in a smash with an automobile.

thinking a great deal lately that it is not fair that you should have any legal restraint upon you. We have been apart over a year and there is absolutely no chance for happiness for you as my wife. No doubt you have thought of it and are too proud to mention it. No matter, you are a clever, good looking woman and there are lots of good successful men would make you happy. Probably you have met one or two. If this is so, I am mighty happy and will do all I can to fix things so that you can be free to marry."

Attached to this letter was one said to be in the handwriting of Christ. In part it says:

"Am amazed at Frank's attitude. Why not be honest with ourselves. When his beginning of honesty is to first pay the debts he contracted while you two were partners, then talk about a move to the next step, why buck in such a manner what he owes your mother and elsewhere—the liabilities of both of you—and pack all the burdens of debt on your heart and shoulders. 'Anyhow I want to see you clean the slate at Havre. An coming to help.'"

JUDGE CARLTON WILL GO TO HAVRE.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Frank Carleton, former Montana judge, now practicing law in Los Angeles, left today for Havre, Mont., according to relatives here, to take charge of the body of his wife, Mrs. Margaret Carleton, who, according to a coroner's jury in the Montana city, shot and killed the Rev. Leonard Jacob Christy and herself.

POISONED CAKE SENT IN MAILS CARRIES DEATH

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Mystery today continued to baffled authorities in the case of a poisoned cake which caused the death of W. W. Sterrett, an expert accountant of Devon, and left his wife battling for life in the Bryn Mawr hospital. The cake had been sent to Mrs. Sterrett through the mails.

Physicians at the Bryn Mawr hospital were still unable to say what the poison was. An autopsy was performed on Mr. Sterrett's body yesterday afternoon but no announcement has yet been made. Mrs. Sterrett was said last night to show some improvement.

Missing U. S. Agent Believed Murdered

MOSCOW, Oct. 30.—(By The Associated Press.)—Two arrests have been made in connection with the disappearance two weeks ago of Philip J. Shield, American relief worker at Simbirsk, according to a telegram received here from Colonel William N. Tinscott, head of the field forces of the American Relief Administration.

Until Saturday, the authorities were inclined to believe that the relief worker, whose home is in Richmond, Va., had committed suicide, but early yesterday morning developments not yet made public led them to believe that Shield may have been murdered.

Villa, Wounded in Battle, Is Dying

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 30.—Francisco Villa, former bandit, is dying at Parral, Chihuahua, from wounds suffered in a recent engagement with Murguistas at Cantuillo, according to word received here today by Federal agents and members of the Mexican colony.

MAN FINED $100

George Orput was today fined $100 by Police Judge Elmer E. Johnson, who was sitting for Judge Edward J. Tyrrell after he entered a plea of guilty to violating the state poison law. He was arrested on August 24 at 918 Broadway. He had a small quantity of opium in his possession at the time.

'Living Wage' Plea Scored By Ruling of Labor Board

fact, the board in this instance in all others, has granted a living wage. But the abstract elusive thing called 'the living wage' confessedly based upon a make-shift and a guess, cannot receive the sanction of this board, because it would be utterly impractical and would not be just and reasonable as the law demands."

Mr. Wharton's dissenting opinion and the supporting opinion in reply are attached to the formal decision increasing the pay of maintenance of way employees two cents an hour, establishing minimum ranging from 25 to 37 cents. The United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employees and Railway Shop Laborers held a strike order affecting 400,000 men in abeyance last July after the board had reduced wages, pending a request for an increase based on the contention that the costs of living had advanced and wages in other industries had been raised.

Secretary Davis Hopeful of Peace

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 30.—Hope of an early solution of the problem of railroad labor conditions was expressed by James J. Davis, secretary of labor, in a statement made public here yesterday. Davis is visiting the northwest on an inspection trip. "I have been impressed with the strong sense of responsibility among the railroad workers," said Davis, "and with their recognition of the duty that they and their employers owe to the whole people. The men who do the work are almost universally convinced that means can be found to adjust the relations of the railroads and their employees in such a way as to eliminate all possibility of great railroad strikes."

"There seems to be a feeling

Abolition Demanded By Railmen's Chief

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(By United Press.)—Dissolution of the United States Railroad Labor Board for its refusal to accept the principle of the living wage, was demanded today by R. C. Greenly, president of the United Association of Railway Employees of North America, in a telegram to President Harding. At the same time Greenly called a meeting of officials of his organization with heads of the American Federation of Railway Employees and other "outlaw" organizations for Wednesday to stage a fight against the board's stand.

Railroad Censured For Injury to 28

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today was blamed by the Interstate Commerce Commission for the collision on September 13 between a freight train and a Southern Pacific passenger train, resulting in the injury of 28 persons. The collision occurred at Houston, Texas, where the tracks of the two roads intersect. The report said the officials of the road were open to severe censure for permitting the freight train to move over the crossing without coming to a stop, and for operating transfer trains without brakes in service.

of his life there, without hope of cure and without the sight of any of his fellow-beings save those who were also inmates of the settlement. He was not allowed to have his family with him unless they, too, were victims of the disease.

The abandonment of the settlement will be made possible, it is believed by medical authorities, by the fact that leprosy patients can now be cured of the disease, and will no longer have to be imprisoned away from the rest of the world as incurable carriers of contagion.

Molokai was the scene of the labors of Father Damien, who was made the subject of an essay by Robert Louis Stevenson. A Catholic missionary to the South Seas, Father Damien settled on the island in 1873, and devoted the rest of his life to the lepers in the government hospital. He died of leprosy, which he contracted on the island.

FULTON PLAYERS MAKE GOOD SHOW OF INSIPID PLAY

"Golden Days," Sentimental Honor, Made Pleasing By Team Work.

Further proof of the statement that the play is not always the thing and that actors of more than passing cleverness can make good entertainment out of inadequate drama was given by the Fulton Players as a unit yesterday at the Oakland premier of "Golden Days."

A packed house was charmed by the magnetic personality of the diminutive blonde leading woman who appeared to splendid advantage in the role of wholesome little Mary Anne; and showed its delight continually at the excellent interpretation of Dick by John Miljan. "Golden Days" tells the story of Mary Anne, the little country mouse who has been lured and who falls in with the plans of her Tish-like aunt to make the latter repent of her deed. During the course of her attempt to educate him, however, she falls in love with her male conspirator, Dick, who has been engaged to pose as an ardent wooer.

Considered as a play, "Golden Days" is quite the most insipid sentimental honor that has graced the stage of the Fulton this season, but due to Miss Lowe and Miljan and the co-workers, it was elevated from the level to which the authors consigned it in the writing and made into more or less delightful entertainment.

SCENES MADE NOTABLE.

The actors made the most of the good scenes in the play, notably the second act ball room scene where little Mary Anne routs her enemies, male and female, and the climax of the third act when the pseudo-wooer leaves for the front, for this, by the way, deals with the removal of the war. In this last scene Miljan and Miss Lowe did their best work. Throughout the presentation there was noticeable the effort at consistent team-work on the part of the players and this general attempt to make for entertainment and a smooth performance overbalanced by far the individual inadequacies of some of the members.

Bessie Tannehill returned to the dramatic stage in the role of Mrs. Kirkland, who is really old "Tish" herself in disguise, but Miss Tannehill does not gather the part to herself as May Robins does in the original. The Tannehill reading is more of a comic opera one and does not get the sympathies of the audience.

MANY BRIGHT SPOTS.

Bright spots in the acting line were contributed by V. Vaughn Morgan, who made a lovely creature of the will-o'-wisp Teddy; Dorothy Blackburn, who gave a sympathetic interpretation to Elaine Jewett, the "cat"; Eugenia Churchill, Edith Seales and Hedwig Hale, the last two in comedy roles. Told Ivan played the role of the first lover who undertook to jilt Mary Anne, but did not prove convincing in the role. Ivan is essentially a comedian, and while he gave an intelligent interpretation, he felt uncomfortable, and showed it. Walter Plunkett and Albert Sells complete the cast, one with hands carefully concealed in his pockets and the other blissfully chewing gum.

Despite its shortcomings as a play, "Golden Days" has been presented to good fun by the local company. There is a laugh and a tear and a quantity of showy scenery.—W. S.

Nazimova returns to the stage next month in a Hungarian play "Tilla."

ARTIST TO SING DURING MUSIC WEEK

"I hear you are to appear on several musical programs the first week of November—Music Week, isn't it? Is that why we never see you any more—too busy?"

"Oh, I am frightfully busy. All this business of preparing programs takes a lot of time. There will be so much crammed into those few days."

"I am sure of it. I want to hear as much of the week's music as I can possibly attend. I am going to watch the papers for your numbers and be sure to be there."

"Oh, I don't know about that. I am still sensitive about singing before my friends. Sometimes I feel self-conscious when my friends are in the audience—especially if I feel somewhat shabby and wish I had better clothes. Doesn't bother me for strangers."

"That's all foolishness. You shouldn't deprive your friends of the joy of hearing you. Anyway, you ought to get something new for music week. You can sing so much better if you know you are properly dressed."

"I know, but clothes cost so much and I don't believe I can afford them now."

"Oh, you can, I am sure. Anyway, you should go to Cherry's, 515 13th St. They have such lovely suits and dresses, and allow one to buy on credit, you know. After making a small payment down one is allowed a reasonable time to finish payments."

Can You Title This Unnamed Cartoon?

Name the cartoon. For the best title, the one most apt, the cleverest or most fitting, The OAKLAND TRIBUNE will pay $10 each week. The rules are simple, as follows:

The titles must be written on a postcard and addressed to Title Editor, OAKLAND TRIBUNE.

Titles must not exceed twelve words in length.

They must reach The OAKLAND TRIBUNE by Thursday night following the Monday the picture is published.

One person may send in as many titles as he wishes, but only two on one postcard.

Postcards must not be enclosed in envelopes. Letters will not be eligible.

Postcards must bear only the title and the name and address and no message whatsoever.

Winners will be announced each Sunday.

AMERICAN

Wallace Reid, who is continually finding himself spurred on to trouble by the wiles of a beautiful countess, steps into a mummy and haunted Spanish castle to assail an army of ghosts in his latest fun creation, "The Ghost Breaker" which is running large audiences this week at the American theater.

A double bill is being offered this week and the second feature is "The Top of New York," a human interest picture with May McAvoy, which serves as a pleasing contrast to the comedy number.

"The Top of New York" is a beautifully told story of a New York shop girl.

NEW BROADWAY

"The Kick-Back" offers two notable stars of the screen in one production at the New Broadway today. They are Harry Carey and Henry B. Walthall.

Carey has the role of the cowboy hero of an exciting story. Walthall is the polished, crafty villain. The story deals with the seizure of a water-hole from Carey, an adventurous daredevil. Love interest is allowed to mingle with thrilling events until a stirring climax is reached.

"The Kick-Back" is only one of three attractions on the Broadway bill to be seen for the last time tonight.

PANTAGES

A new program of vaudeville and pictures was presented at the Pantages theater yesterday. The bill will be reviewed tomorrow.

CHIMES

Tonight and tomorrow night are the last two nights of Alvin Robins, supported by Lev Cody in "The Valley of the Kings." Those familiar with the novel will recall that it is a story of the Royal Northwest mounted police with the Rocky Mountains for a background.

A picture of tremendous power, bearing as it does the souls of five men and a woman who are isolated in a narrow valley.

Tomorrow night, for one night only, the Chimes theater offers Constance Binney in "First Love." It is the story of a woman's love romance told in scenes from every day life that will strike home to thousands. "Spring Fever" is a comedy that makes up the balance of the bill.

FRANKLIN

Charles Forsyth and his "Intimate Symphony" will give two nightly concerts, at 7 and 9 15 o'clock at the Franklin. Sunday afternoon concerts at 3 o'clock will also be the rule.

The concert this week follows Selections from "Sally," "A Trip Around the World," "Blue," "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" is the feature picture that offers Martha Mansfield opportunities to display her charm and her acting.

It is a tale of Paris as the title denotes, cabaret life and the manner in which pretty artist models are duped by the so-called fashionable set. It has a moral and carries many a thrill and punch.

The present program ends next Friday night, to give way for A. Conan Doyle's "The Hound of the Baskervilles," and the 1922 fall and winter Fashion Show of Manheim & Mazer, whose twenty living models will wear imported gowns, dresses and coats.

VETERAN ACTOR HEADS PLEASING BILL AT ORPHEUM

Will Cressy Observes Birthday; Program Full of Bright Comedy, Music.

A remarkably well-balanced program containing just that sprinkling of clever comedy, music and patter, trained animal acts and other numbers that go to make a well-reasoned dish for vaudeville fans ushered in this week's production at the Oakland Orpheum yesterday. Among the star numbers is Will Cressy's new skit entitled "Without a Will There's a Way," which proved a sure-fire hit with the audience from certain rise to drop thanks to its superabundance of comedy mixed with pathos, and interpreted by the veteran Cressy knows so well. The veteran actor celebrated his 69th birthday yesterday. He was received with hearty applause.

Cressy is supported in the skit by Ethel and Marion Hodges. A country law office in a small town furnishes the background. Cressy takes the role of referee between two sisters contesting a legacy. The part offers plenty of scope for his inimitable dry wit, as well as for the talents of the two supporting actresses. Though it turns out, at the end, that the referee is the village parson, instead of the lawyer he was believed to be, his decision has all the wisdom of Solomon.

Mantell's Manikins, playing in "La Petite Cabaret," were a huge success with adults as well as with the children of the audience. Roy La Rocca, wizard of the harp, was encored repeatedly, his interpretation of "Ed Lucavan le Stella," from "Paganini," being especially appreciated by the audience.

Breezy comedy and equally breezy music mark "A Little Production," featuring Bill Bailey and his band, Lynn Cowan and his rampant piano and pretty Estelle Davis. The production contains several novelty features.

Harry Faber and Ursula McGowan in "The Compass" kept the house laughing and happy with their divertissements of their skit, and John and Nellie Olms, the watch wizards, showed some sleight-of-hand work with their watch and alarm clock acts that set the audience gasping.

Hector, the wonder dog and his supporting cast of little wonder dogs, perform tricks which seem to show that, after all, the dividing line between canine and human intelligence is but faint. One of the "stunts" makes the dogs perambulate through the house, announcing their presence in short veeps and barks to the gallery and other parts of the house as their trainer calls them.

This excellent new show also contains three new films and a highly entertaining musical program, directed by Leon Kowalski.

The T & D offering for the current week is headed by Peter B. Kyne's "Kindred of the Dust," with Miriam Cooper appearing as the little outcast, Nan of the Sawdust Pile. She is fought by the proud old laird whose pride is humbled when his son married her—but who, beneath his iron shell, was glad his boy stood by the girl. The picture is a story for everybody.

Other features of the current program are Irvin S. Cobb's humorous story, "The Five Dollar Baby," featuring Viola Dana, the comedy picture, "The Son of a Sheik," featuring "That Son of a Sheik," Becker and his syncretists; Dorothy Adair and Lloyd Carmichael at the organ.

The program stage this season, under the direction of Earl Carroll.

CURTAIN CALLS

By WOOD SOANES.

THEATER managers on both sides of the bay are preparing to battle to the death the proposed inauguration of a "swing orchestra" plan decided upon by the musicians' union, to give each member of the musical craft a day off.

The argument seems to be not so much the idea of giving the musician a day of rest as that of having the musical organization of the theaters disrupted for a day by the advent of a complete new orchestra unfamiliar with the work.

For some time past the stage hands have had a day off on the "swing" proposition, but inasmuch as the number of stage hands is far less than the musicians each day was covered up by the regulars familiar with the work, the managers content.

"Imaging the turmoil with our show here," said Herbert Harris, proprietor of the Century theater, "if on Wednesday next an entire drop."

The old minstrel days are brought to mind in the vaudeville act of Miller and Hendrix, "The Speed Demons," presenting a blackface number that is staged in a different way.

Bennett and Culver are able young people offering a singing and talking number, "The Love Boat," which is enhanced by the appearance of a remarkably attractive drop.

Coming with a saxophone solo in one, Hal Hart goes into a garden set in full stage and does the greater part of his unique act. Hart is an expert on the tight wire.

A novel barnyard frolic is provided by Jack Van Camp and his little company, and is a mélange of magic and stunts with a troupe of trained pigs. Mario Correll and company present "An Alibi for a Prince." The element of surprise figures to a great extent in its presentation.

"The Referee" which comes to the State theater next Wednesday, offers Conway Tearle a fitting type of role.

CENTURY

Are You Jealous? is the title of the new Jack Russell musical comedy at the Century theater, which will be reviewed tomorrow.

ew orchestra should come in and "tempt" to play the music. The vman doesn't appreciate the possibilities. It isn't that the "swing orchestra" wouldn't be able to play music as written but they couldn't be able to interpret it as e want it.

"It would mean that we would

Twenty Seasons Ago Today

"Romeo and Juliet" is the offering at the Macdonough theater tonight with Charles D. Hernau playing Romeo. No mention is made in the billing of the fair Juliet. "Gaston Cadot" was presented last night.

The present agreement between musicians and managers expects on January 1 at which time both expect to reach an understanding on the matter of the swing orchestra.

have two complete rehearsals and added to that difficulty is the probability that the swing orchestra would not be comprised of competent men. And what of the leaders? Who could replace Paul Steindorff, Paul Ash, Severi or a dozen others?

The present agreement between musicians and managers expects on January 1 at which time both expect to reach an understanding on the matter of the swing orchestra.

It's an ill wind that blows no dramatic stock manager good - and so the stock manager who has the money can profit by the failures of his eastern brother. Witness the story of George Ebey, managing director of the Fulton theater, who is now in New York doing his winter play shopping and having a lot of luck according to his letters.

"Show business here is terrible," Ebey writes. "Plays that would ordinarily enjoy long runs are being sent to the storehouse after a few weeks. Since I arrived here I have been going to two shows a day in an effort to see all of the attractions before they are pulled off."

"Of course this is great stuff for me. I am able to buy the dramatic stock rights for attractions that, under ordinary conditions I might have to wait a couple of years for California money looks mighty good to the Eastern play producer right now. Already I have secured the rights to a number of great plays."

During his first half hour in New York, Ebey met three Californians strolling along Broadway—Paul Harvey, Jack Sheehan and George Davis.

William Hodge has written another play for himself. "For All of Us" is the title.

McKay Morris, who is playing with Ethel Barrymore in "Rose Eecond," is being favorably mentioned for the Orlando in Miss Barrymore's winter production of "As You Like It."

Walker Hamden is making another Shakespearean tour. This season he is featuring his production of "Othello" which he intends to use for his New York opening about the middle of January.

Exits and Entrances

Monte Carter and George White are teamed up in musical comedy in Salt Lake City. Both Carter and White played here with their own companies. In the Salt Lake company are Howard Evans and Billie Blinnham, juvenile and ingenue late of the Lyric theater in Portland, with Ben T. Dillon and Agnes Snyder, a chorus-girl-soloist.

Mitt is playing in the west in "Lady Billy." She arrives here late in November, according to plans.

Oakland has the distinction of possessing the youngest theater manager in the country. C. Dahnen, son of the founder of the T. B. circuit, is now running the local house. He is eighteen years of age.

"Virtue," a new play of American life by William Everett, has been placed in rehearsal by the Empire Play company for Broadway production during Thanksgiving week. Myles McCarthy has been given the leading role.

Jack Russell is enlarging his chorus at the Century. Tomorrow there will be three lines of girls instead of the customary two.

Robert E. Lawrence and Al Cunningham, former dramatic stock favorites here, are appearing with the Allen Players at Edmont, Alta.

The Little Theater club of Oakland will open its second season on Friday evening, November 24, with Bertha Stone's "The Great Catherine." Hedwig Reacher, director of the club players, will play the leading role. One of the five plays of the season will be "The Congo," Vachel Lindsay's poetic character study of the negro race.

It is whispered that Ben Hecht, the novelist having written one play is now hard at work on another. This time he writes of Benvenuto Cellini, the celebrated goldsmith.

George M. Cohan has put "The Song of the Dragon" into rehearsal. It is a play by Augustus Thomas, czar of things the "real" Thomas, fear of things the "ideal" Thomas. Florence Eldridge will have the lead.

McKay Morris, who is playing with Ethel Barrymore in "Rose Eecond," is being favorably mentioned for the Orlando in Miss Barrymore's winter production of "As You Like It."

Walker Hamden is making another Shakespearean tour. This season he is featuring his production of "Othello" which he intends to use for his New York opening about the middle of January.

MYSTERY CLOAKS STRANGE DEATHS OF BRIDE, GROOM

Bodies Found in Bath Tub
May Have Been Poison Gas Victims.

YONKERS, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The deaths of Daniel Cohen and his wife, young bride and bridegroom, whose bodies were found in the bathroom of their home, were unexplained, following an autopsy today. Dr. C. A. Bennett and Dr. David Ramsay reported to coroner Snowden that the examination threw no light on the cause of death. The question of whether they were murdered or killed one another in a suicide pact remains unsolved.

It is possible that if they were murdered, they were poisoned by means of gas generated from powder sprinkled on the gas stove, in which a fire was burning, according to one theory. This would account for the copious bleeding from the nose which accompanied death in each case.

The surgeons found no marks of violence on the body of the girl to substantiate the theory that she was drowned by being forcibly held under water in the bathtub. No marks were found on the bridegroom's corpse.

There were indications of slight inflammation in the stomachs, possibly due to poison. A chemical analysis will be made.

Child Burned to Death by Coffee

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—Morton Schwartz, ten-month-old, was fatally burned Saturday as the result of the overturning of a coffee pot at the home of his foster father, J. Farion, 2711 Diamond street. The child died today at the Children's hospital. The infant was a charge of the Associated Charities.

Wilhelm Not to Adopt Children Of Bride-to-Be

By S. D. WEYER,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1922, by International News Service.)

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—Though their mother will be married next Sunday to the former German kaiser—formerly one of the world's most powerful rulers—the five children of the bride-to-be, Princess Hermine of Rouss, widow of Prince Johan of Schoenaich-Carolath, will remain fatherless.

These children cannot refer to the former German emperor as their new "daddy." So far as they are concerned, their mother's remarriage is a strictly private affair, although three of the youngsters will live at Doorn, close by their mother.

The correspondent is able to state positively that the ex-kaiser has no intention of adopting the children of his future bride. Curious as it might seem off-hand there are weighty reasons for the family division. The principal one is "children's neutrality"—a reason which works two ways. "Mother" to her future husband's children any more than he will be "father" to hers. This will prevent considerable embarrassment.

Otherwise the former German crown prince would be calling a woman almost ten years junior "mother" and would be calling boys and girls ten years younger than his own "brother and sister." Such would be a grotesque situation and one to which considerable attention was paid in drawing up the marriage contract.

So far as the name of Princess Hermine is concerned after her marriage, it is certain she will have the title of "majesty" just as William does, except for the outside world.

There has been considerable gossip recently over a "secret gland" or rejuvenating operation the ex-kaiser was said to have undergone. This gossip is said

WITNESS' ANGER STIRRED IN TRIAL OF SYNDICALISTS

Clash Comes When Defendant Implies Frame-Up
By Policemen.

Questions designed by the defense in the criminal syndicalism trials to bring out evidence in support of their oft-repeated charges that evidence was "planted" in Loring hall at the time of the Communist Labor Party convention, which was raided by the police, caused a clash between J. H. Dolson, one of the defendants who are conducting their own defense, and Police Inspector William Kyle, today.

Dolson asked Kyle if he "planted" evidence in the hall prior to the raid, or subsequent to that event. Kyle replied heatedly.

Judge Samuels intervened and ordered the trial to proceed. Dolson questioned Kyle at some length concerning the police handling of Nicholas Postnikoff, alleged member of the party. Postnikoff claimed to have been roughly handled by the police during the raid. He later unsuccessfully sued the city.

Kyle denied that any rough tactics had been used. He claimed that Postnikoff resisted arrest and force was used in subduing him.

British Debt Mission Arranges U. S. Trip

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Times understands that the mission to negotiate the funding of the British debt will likely leave for the United States between the end of the elections and Christmas. Its personnel has not yet been decided.

HEAVY SHIPPERS STEP INTO BIG C. P. LEASE SUIT

Atholl McBean and E. O. Edgerton Sign Petition Against Divorce.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—Shippers who claim to represent payment of not less than a quarter billion dollars annually in freight charges, today forwarded a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission asking that they be allowed to intervene in the Southern Pacific-Central Pacific separation case.

The shippers ask that they be allowed to take part with the Southern Pacific in its petition for continuance of unified operation of the Central and Southern Pacific lines.

Atholl McBean and E. O. Edgerton, vice-president and counsel respectively for the shippers' committee, signed the petition against dismemberment of the Southern Pacific and Central Pacific.

UTAH ALSO PETITIONS.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 30.—The state of Utah, through authority of Governor Charles R. Mabey and by Attorney-General Harvey H. Cluff, has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to be accepted as an intervenor in the proceedings brought by the Southern Pacific company applying for permission to acquire control by lease and by stock ownership of the Central Pacific Railroad company.

The intervening petition was drawn up Saturday and immediately forwarded to the commission. It is the purpose of the state to aid in placing before the Interstate Commerce Commission evidence to oppose the application of the Union Pacific system, which has filed with the commission a petition against a dismissal of the case on the ground that the commission is without jurisdiction. The hearing of the latter application has been set for November 4.

HOLLISTER MAN MORTALLY HURT WHEN RUN DOWN

HOLLISTER, Oct. 30.—Frank Zalba, retired baker, one of the leaders of the Italian colony here, is lying at the point of death in the Hazel Hawkins hospital today, as the result of injuries received in an automobile smashup on San Benito street.

Zalba, afoot, was crossing the street during a rainstorm when Harry King, distributor for the bay city papers here, came along in his roadster and ran him down. The driver claims he was blinded by the rain. He put on the brakes, but the car skidded, crushing Zalba on the pavement, carrying him several feet. The attending doctor says the injured man will not live. He suffered a badly crushed right leg and a basal fracture of the skull.

Souvenir Fiends Hack Away Tree At Crime Scene

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 30.—The crabapple tree, in the shade of which, on the morning of September 14 last, the bodies of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. John, the Evangelist, and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, a singer in the church choir, were found murdered, is gone.

Leaves, sprigs and limbs, it has been carried away, piece by piece, by thousands of curio-seekers from all parts of the country, who have visited the Phillips farm since the murders.

INQUEST HELD IN CASE OF POLICE KILLING AT LODI

LODI, Oct. 30.—Coroner Oscar Pope announced that while the verdict in the case of Ernest Felsch, shot and killed while endeavoring to escape from local officers over a week ago, will stand, it may possibly be refused by the State Board of Health. The verdict returned Friday night after a long wait, follows: "Death caused by shot wound." It does not say who fired the shot, how or why, and has caused considerable discussion here.

Arney Cannon questioned and cross-questioned witnesses at length, but the officers were not shaken in their story. Cannon represented the dead man's relatives. The shooting has been placed in the hands of the grand jury.

Felsch's relatives declare he was shot without due cause. He had been arrested earlier in the evening as a petty larceny suspect, and escaped at the door of the city prison.

Deputy City Marshal Fred Shealer, only to be found in his home two hours later by City Marshal Christensen, Deputy Shealer, Cons. Le B. F. Acker and Night Officer Del Acker. They declare he refused to heed repeated commands to halt. Following the shooting Shealer and Christensen stated they fired at the same instant.

Suit for Million To Open Tomorrow

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 30.—Trial of a suit in which Mrs. Dorrit Van Deusen Woodhouse of this city and New York seeks damages of $1,000,000 from Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, her father-in-law, for alleged alienation of her husband's affections will be started here tomorrow. C. Douglas Woodhouse, husband of the plaintiff, is not in this city. He recently entered a suit for divorce at Reno, Nev.

The plaintiff charges that her husband's parents were instrumental in having him meet a Mrs. McCalland of Washington, D. C., to whom she alleges he later paid attentions. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse is president of the Merchants' National Bank of this city.

Rumanians to Send Debt Envoy to U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(By International News Service.)—The Rumanian government formally notified the American state department that a specific financial commission would shortly be sent to this country to take up the question of refunding its $41,000,000 debt to the United States. The Rumanian announcement was the result of an American note asking a pronouncement of her future policy toward the debt.

U.S. May Have To Turn Back Load of Whisky

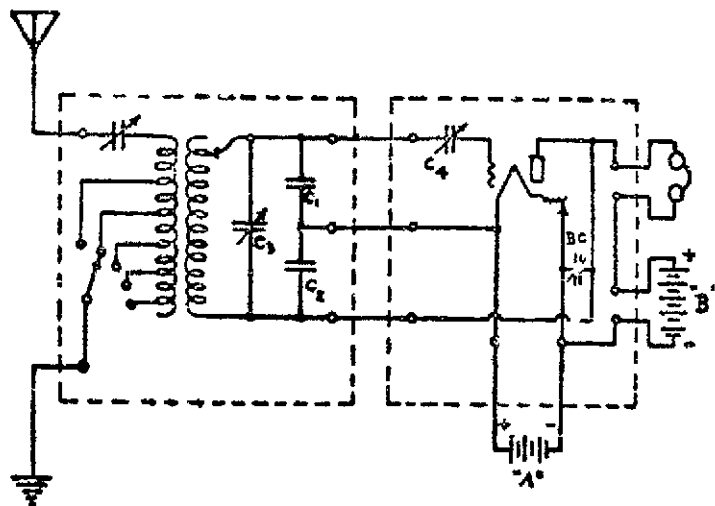

By W. H. ATKINS,
(International News Service Staff Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The government may be compelled to release 250,000 gallons of whisky, seized from ships flying foreign flags outside the three mile limit, and dismiss the cases pending in Federal courts against the liquor owners and ship operators. This was indicated at the treasury department as a result of the precedent set in the release of the Canadian schooner Emerald, with her cargo of 1000 cases of whisky.

Burial caskets of glass are now manufactured.

Fifteen Minutes of Radio Daily

by Edward M. Davis

Regenerative receivers with inductive feedback arrangements of the tickler coil or variometer type in common use at many amateur stations. There is another method of obtaining regenerative action which requires no coils or variometers and needs no adjustment. This method is by means of condensers usually in the form of an Eaton oscillator.

The diagram above illustrates one way in which the Eaton oscillator may be incorporated into a regenerative set made up in two units. One unit (the one at the left) contains the tuning elements and the other unit contains vacuum tube apparatus. The Eaton oscillator which consists essentially of two condensers in series is incorporated in the unit containing the tuning device which is of the loose coupler or variometer type. A secondary shunt condenser of the variable air type is also mounted in this unit to assist in tuning the secondary circuit.

The unit at the right contains a vacuum tube detector circuit of the usual type with a lead running

"C2" constitute the oscillator or feed back portion of the circuit while the condenser "EC" is important in the adjustment of the system for the reception of damped or undamped waves. For receiving damped waves condenser "EC" is set at maximum while for undamped waves it is adjusted to minimum. The circuit may be operated without employing the bridging condenser "BC" but spark signals will not be received with normal characteristic tone.

In operation there is a certain amount of the plate potential feed back and impressed upon the grid by means of the condensers "C1" and "C2" which form a capacity feed back in contrast to the inductive arrangement usually employed. The circuit shown may be applied to any loose coupler and tube detector system without materially changing the circuits or dismounting the apparatus. The condensers "C1" and "C2" are two fixed condensers in series across the secondary terminals with the grid on one side, filament in the middle and the plate on the other side.

While not particularly adapted to short wave work, it has been possible to get down to 230 meters with this device and good regeneration is obtained up to several thousand meters. A receiver of this type is comparatively simple to operate, the receiving unit lacking the usual tickler coil control or the variometers which serve similar purposes.

SAYS IT MADE A NEW PERSON OF HER

Thousands of people needlessly endure a half-sick, nervous, run-down condition when they might enjoy sturdy, robust health and all its manifold blessings if they only knew what to do. People in this condition find Tanlac soon ends their trouble and builds up abundant strength, energy and vitality. Mrs. Mable Cohenagen, 731 Stella Ave., Watts, Cal., says:
"I had been in an awful condition and for seven weeks I couldn't leave my bed. My case seemed to puzzle every one and I could get nothing to help me. But since taking Tanlac I've gained several pounds in weight, and every one of my troubles are gone. Nervousness and a run-down, tired-out feeling are but symptoms of a hidden cause, which usually lies in the stomach. Tanlac enables you to digest your food properly, eliminate waste and regain your old-time strength and vigor. Get a bottle today at any good drugstore.—Advertisement."

The Lawyers Bill Spells Lawyers' Fees.

Make November 7 Purse Protection Day!

Build a wall of "NO" votes between your pocket book and—A Law That Would Legislate You Into Lawyers' Offices to Pay Lawyers' Fees—The Lawyers Bill.

Do you want a statute that would make service a crime, that would make a lawbreaker of the banker or business man who gives you some legal service or legal advice for nothing?

The Lawyers Bill would make it "illegal FOR ANY PERSON not a licensed attorney to make it a practice to furnish legal advice or service"

The Lawyers Bill is legislation by lawyers for lawyers. It was passed by a legislature one-third made up of lawyers. It is part of a national campaign for laws to compel a greater patronage of lawyers. It would create a monopoly for lawyers.

If you do not want to meet, in the shape of fees, the cost of this lawyers' monopoly—

ALAMEDA, Oct. 30.—The Catholic Ladies' Aid Society of this city will hold a reception to be followed by a banquet Thursday night, November 9 at a cafe in Park street. Mrs. Helen Miller, grand president, will be the honor guest for the evening and at the conclusion of the banquet will install the following officers:
Mrs. Thomas Egan, president, Mrs. J. J. Tompkins senior vice-president; Mrs. Jose Barle, junior vice-president; Miss Jose Wieland, recording secretary; Mrs. George Mattess, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert Pyke, treasurer; Mrs. Gilbert Harris, marshal; Mrs. G. L. Rolph, guard, executive committee; Messrs. J. G. Kearney, Joseph Wall, D. Elmer Dyer, W. H. Callahan and Miss Bessie Jollymour.
Mrs. Andre Fourchy is the retiring president, having served in that office for the last two years.

Gasoline Explosion Kills Four Boys

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Oct. 30.—Three boys were killed and one was fatally injured by the explosion of a gasoline tank in the rear of Union Square late yesterday. The fourth boy died last night. The police express the opinion that the boys had been playing with matches near the tank.

Explosion Blinds Boy Auto Driver

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—William Hearn, 16 years old, struck a match to get a better view of the gasoline in his automobile tank here yesterday, and, according to physicians, was probably blinded for life by the explosion which followed.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—The submarine R-3, which last night was reported floundering about in the Santa Barbara channel, off Anacapa Island, its engines out of commission, is safe in port here today.

VITAL LESSONS WILL BE TAUGHT AT HEALTH SHOW

Moving Panorama of All That Makes For Best Living Coming.

Oakland and the Eastbay district are making big preparations for the staging of the first health show ever held in California.

The event known as the International Health and Safety Exposition will be staged in the Municipal Auditorium, November 17-26, inclusive. It is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and is being supported by every civic, commercial, fraternal, welfare and similar organization in the Eastbay. All of California is invited to the show.

The advance sale admission tickets to the exposition got under way today. It is necessary to have a large advance sale in order to insure the success of the show, which is costing something more than $55,000 to present.

TICKET BOOKS CHEAPEST.

Because the sale of commercial space is limited and in view of the fact that the exposition of educational features sponsored by federal, state and community agencies, it is necessary to raise funds through admissions.

Books of ten tickets valued at 25 cents each are being sold at $2.50 a book. E. A. Crowley has charge of the tickets and is being assisted by a large number of assistants, including a bevy of pretty girls.

The exposition itself, however, is being sold on its merits. It is the first health show ever held in California. A living, moving panorama will unfold the thousand and one agencies which make for the

DANGER SIGNALS.

Pain, fever, and general debility are Nature's warning to the individual. A trainman would not disregard a danger signal, but we frequently fail to take account of Nature's signals at the proper time. Abnormalities must be recognized early and removed if the "human machine" is not to be strangled before its time.

Loss of weight, loss of strength, unusual fatigue, a persistent cough or fever should be investigated. They may be forerunners of serious trouble which if not checked early may keep you fighting it for years. Many persons who have these early symptoms of tuberculosis lose valuable time and often their chance of recovery by attempting to deny them, by resort to patent medicines or by consulting those not capable of giving expert advice.

Another disease which does not need to be delayed if discovered and treated early enough is cancer. Because its early signs are apt to be painless and seem rather trivial to neglect them is only too easy. Warts, moles, birthmarks, persistent ulcers, cracks, or sores which change in appearance or grow larger should be investigated and removed. If the conditions which are known to precede cancer are avoided or cured it may be prevented. If discovered early and health of the individual and the community.

MOVING PAGEANT STAGED.

The show will not be a dry, statistical record of charts and figures of death by disease and accident, of medical appliances and medicinal drugs, but will be a spectacular demonstration of those activities which mean longer, healthier lives.

Sanitation, recreation, food values, correctly applied psychology, the care of babies, scientific care

53 CANDIDATES FAVOR CONGRESS AS FINAL COURT

Amendment to Constitution Giving Right to Nullify Rulings Sought.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Fifty-three nominees for Congress in the coming election, including nine Republicans and 19 Democrats favor amendment of the constitution to permit Congress to override and nullify decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, according to results of a nation-wide questionnaire on the subject, made public yesterday by the National Security League.

"Tabulation of the returns from 40 out of 48 states," said the report, "showed favorable replies from nominees in 18, opposition in 22, on the part of all who sent answers while no replies were received from five states."

"Among the 28 Republican and Democratic nominees favoring an amendment, eight were from Pennsylvania, five from New York, three from Michigan, two each from Ohio and Illinois and one each from California, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Virginia, Texas, Kansas, Massachusetts and Missouri."

"Twenty-nine non-committal replies were received including one from Senator Johnson of California, while no replies were received from any nominees in Arkansas, Colorado, Mississippi, Nevada and New Mexico."

"Opposition to the proposal, including Senator Dupont of Delaware and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, was voiced in all replies from the following states: Alabama, Arizona, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia and Wyoming."

ASK THE TRIBUNE Bureau Information

"Will you please print in your query column a list of all animals belonging to the ape family?"

Technically, an ape is a man-like monkey, a member of the family Simiidae, forming a kind of connecting link between man and the lower animals, and hence termed anthropoid. This family includes the gorilla, chimpanzee, orang and gibbon. The term ape is more broadly applied in a zoological sense to all monkeys as well as to man, to distinguish them from the primate primates.

"Has the Fulton playhouse a revolving stage?"

Yes.

"Is Rodolph Valentino Italian or Spanish?"

Saintino was born in Castellana, Southern Italy, in 1895.

"What is another name for summer squash?"

The terms similar or similar are used in the south, derived from the name of a round, flat cake.

"What is the capacity of California Field?"

The seating capacity is 24,300.

The Tribune Information Bureau will answer all questions of a general nature except school or legal problems, debates, trade and firm names and queries as to the time of day.

The bureau is open every day except Sunday from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m.

If answers are desired by mail stamps must be enclosed. Quickest results can be obtained by telephoning to the bureau. If you have any problems of a general nature to solve, ask The TRIBUNE Information Bureau, Lakeside 6000.

Memorial Observed For Drake's Landing

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—In commemoration of the landing of Sir Francis Drake and the establishing of the House of Churchwomen in this State, services were held yesterday in Golden Gate park at the foot of Prayer Book Cross. Yesterday's memorial service was the seventeenth annual observance. These annual services are held in commemoration of the first Christian service held on the Pacific coast in 1592.

Manhunt Resumed For Thug on Beach

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—The police are continuing their search today for an unidentified man who, with no apparent provocation, administered a brutal beating to Wm. Seiner, a carpenter, living at 2020 Howard street. The attack occurred Saturday on Ocean Beach, not far from the Golden Gate park entrance. John W. Westfall, 1612 Fillmore street, was held for a time as a suspect, but Seiner failed to identify him as his assailant. Westfall is being held pending an investigation as to his sanity. Westfall was found by the police Saturday night on the ocean beach. His coat and hat were gone, and he bore evidences of a physical struggle.

Mayor Wins Mule, Destined for Park

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—Mayor Rolph has a mule on his hands. He won her at a barbecue contest in Ukiah last month. It cost the mayor $20.15 in equine Pullman fare to have the mule brought here. He contemplates presenting her to the park commissioner for visitors to the children's playground to ride, provided the park commissioner does not object.

TERMINAL TRACK SHIFT IS BEGUN

Preparations were begun today by the Southern Pacific Company for the rearrangement of its tracks at Fourteenth and Franklin streets, to make way for the construction of the proposed $2,000,000 Athens Terminal building. The necessary switching facilities will be in readiness, it was declared today, before actual work can be started on the eleven-story terminal structure which, it is estimated, will probably not take place within several months.

50-CENT HOLDUP CAUSES KILLING OF TWO PEOPLE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 29.—A rifle bullet, fired as the result of an alleged 50-cent holdup, took the lives of two men here today, and Jake Miller, traced by bloodhounds, is in jail charged with the shooting.

Police said Joseph Brown held up Miller and secured 50 cents. Miller found Brown later in a card game at New Geneva and fired a bullet. The ball passed through Brown's heart and continued through Edgar A. Blair's head, killing both instantly.

Visalia Man Dies In Auto Collision

VISALIA, Oct. 30.—Ralph Brown, 40, of Visalia, was instantly killed last night when the automobile in which he was riding from Tulare to Visalia collided with an unidentified car and turned over three times. The accident occurred four miles south of Visalia.

STILL WARM IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Chicago awoke to find Indian summer still here today. The mercury climbed to 78 yesterday, and the lowest temperature was 55. Except for 1901, when the mercury registered 78, on October 28, it was a record here. Warm weather brought a few bathers to the beaches.

Naval Planes Start Return to Coast

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The two naval airplanes which flew from San Francisco to New Orleans for the American Legion convention arrived at Bolling field yesterday on their return flight to the Pacific Coast. They will remain here several days for overhauling before resuming the trip to San Francisco. They are piloted by Naval Lieutenants V. H. Wyatt and G. T. Owen. J. W. Jackson, past president of Golden Gate Post No. 4, of the American Legion, and Chief Mechanic F. M. Linder of the naval air service also were aboard.

Oatmeal —a "new dish"

This has solved the oatmeal problem in thousands of homes. Steep raisins and mix with the cereal after it is cooked. Add the raisin juice also. The raisins furnish mineral salts and valuable food-iron. But best of all, they make oatmeal attractive with the lure of healthful sweets. Sun-Maid Raisins should cost you no more than the following prices:

Seeded (in 15 oz. blue pkg.)—20c
Unseeded (in 15 oz. blue pkg.)—18c

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' discovery that the trouble and distress of constipation is not in the bowels but in the liver. The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. The trouble and distress of constipation is quickly corrected. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. To do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.—Advertisement.

the recent war was a resident of Oregon. The wedding is planned to be an event of the coming summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Carr will entertain a group of friends at a dinner party to be given at their Piedmont home Friday evening, November 3. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bostwick O'Brien of Stockton will be the honor guests for the occasion and the guest list will include a dozen friends of the young people, whose marriage was an event of a few seasons ago. Next Tuesday evening the Carrs will assemble a coterie of friends for dinner. The O'Briens are frequent visitors here at the home of Mrs. O'Brien's parents, the Vernon Waldrons on Grand avenue.

Miss Cecilia Baum presided as hostess at a beautifully appointed bridge tea last Saturday afternoon when she entertained thirty of her young friends. The home of the hostess, sister, Mrs. Percy Addison Wood in Piedmont, provided the setting for the affair.

DINNER DANCE HELD AT MT. DIABLO CLUB. The Mount Diablo Country Club was the setting on Saturday evening for a smart dinner dance which was attended by a large number of the smart set from the East Bay cities. One of the largest parties was given by Mr. and Mrs. George Jensen, who entertained a score of the younger set in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. John Bryant Knox (Laura Lindsay Miller) whose marriage was a recent notable event in social circles.

Miss Ethel Jean Macaulay, daughter of the H. C. Macaulays of Berkeley entertained a dozen of the college set. The Macaulays will close their country place at the popular club about November 15 and will occupy their home in the college city the remainder of the year.

Mrs. Stewart Keller of Vernon street was a recent hostess at a birthday party in honor of a third anniversary of her little son, Clayton Keller. Among the guests were Betty Kauffman, Peggy Kauffman, Betty Dethlefsen, Claire Thomas, Woodward Todd, James Hamilton Todd, Jr., Robert Salz, Hartley Allen, Billy Orr, John Mack, Lloyd Griffin, Wilmet Richard, Barbara Brown, Mimbo Dobrozensky, Elizabeth Ann Dobrozensky, Mary Johnson, Corwin Johnson, Virginia Swift, Daisy Schmeider and Betty Lawhead.

MARRIAGE OF U. C. GIRL ANNOUNCED.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of Miss Cecil A. Bump, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Addison Bump of Piedmont avenue, and Paul Murray Pierce, which took place at the home of the bride Saturday evening, October 21. The bride was attended by Miss Ruth Poole as maid of honor and the Misses Mabel Burke and Leonora Black as bridesmaids. Leroy Pierce was best man for his brother. The bride is a graduate of the University of California with the class of 1922. The future

Music, Art Combined in Designing

By FRANCES MONTGOMERY.

Because she is a costume designer, an artist and a musician as well, Mrs. W. L. Randall, instructor in costume designing in Oakland and San Francisco, is an interesting figure.

The fact that Mrs. Randall combines these arts in her work makes her an unusual personality. Mrs. Randall has studied costume designing for many years in New York and Paris and besides making her work a profession of teaching she has created many gowns and stage costumes for world celebrities.

"Although always more or less a musician, I really discovered the value of music in my work when pouncing upon me for I was an artist and I could be of such value to them. I soon discovered how. At the establishments of the importers, Calixtus, Worths and the rest, the Paris dressmaker was required to put up $1000 before he or she was allowed to see a gown. I was to go with the dressmakers and see the gowns as they were paraded before us. Of course the importer was never to know that I was an artist. If they had ever discovered it I should have been put out and with not much ceremony.

"But they told me not to be discouraged and that the designs would all probably come to me the second day and they did. I kept at it and before very long I was able to take down in minute detail eleven gowns in two hours. It was always interesting and intensely thrilling, but I never could feel right about it. I soon realized that in a way it was actually stealing and that thought grew on me until I decided that I would give it up. But it was right then that I found out how unnecessary it was for me to steal ideas. Why not create my own ideas, I thought, and I decided after I should do that very thing.

"So I became an original designer. This incident contains the keynote of all I try to impress on those who work with me. I insist on concentration. My students are told to observe all things minutely and to remember what they see as they pass through the streets. They

I designed a stage costume for a famous dancer," said Mrs. Randall.

"Knowing the nature of the dance and being acquainted with the dancer, I procured appropriate music for the photograph, and as I listened to the rhythm of the music I visualized the result in the costume, which, when completed, was a success, for it was created with inspiration and reason."

"In all your experiences what one has been the most interesting to you?" I asked.

Mrs. Randall astounded me with this reply.

"Well, the experience that I remember and always shall, as the most thrilling was brought about by my love of stealing. I love to steal!"

Mrs. Randall laughed at my consternation and hastened to explain.

"After having been a diligent art student in New York I arrived in Paris. When the Paris dressmakers and I met there was a general make a habit of never going to and from work the same route twice in succession."

Mrs. Randall is connected with the university extension course and says she looks forward to taking a party of her artists on a trip to Paris.

In Minnesota there are 1,000,000 acres of peat.

"I will never forget my first afternoon at the importers. I saw and I saw. Gowns of all descriptions passed before me and I was so excited and enthused about it that I could scarcely wait until I had reached home to start the sketches. But when I tried to put them on paper I found I had the sleeve of one gown, the skirt of another and the bodice of another, and I could not remember a single one.

"I had failed the first attempt and I sat down and wept. 'I have failed!' I said when I stood before the dressmakers the next morning. 'I have nothing for you.'

"But they told me not to be discouraged and that the designs would all probably come to me the second day and they did. I kept at it and before very long I was able to take down in minute detail eleven gowns in two hours. It was always interesting and intensely thrilling, but I never could feel right about it. I soon realized that in a way it was actually stealing and that thought grew on me until I decided that I would give it up. But it was right then that I found out how unnecessary it was for me to steal ideas. Why not create my own ideas, I thought, and I decided after I should do that very thing.

Beauties of All Races

Women of some 50 nations now whiten teeth in this way

Do you know that millions of people, all the world over, are now cleaning teeth in a new way? One result is whiter, prettier teeth. You see them everywhere today.

If you don't know that method, we urge you to ask this delightful test. See what it means to you.

Why teeth discolor

Teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can el it now. It clings to teeth, gets between the el and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of toothache.

Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film, which no ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat. So, under old methods, tooth troubles constantly increased, and beautiful teeth were less often seen than today.

Two combatants now

Dental science, after long research, found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring. Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. These two great film combatants were embodied in it. Now this Pepsodent has come into world-wide use, largely by dental advice.

Other new effects

Other results were found to be essential, and Pepsodent brings them. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits, for they may ferment and form acids.

Thus every use gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents. And these combined effects are fast creating a new dental era.

You'll quickly see

These benefits are quickly seen and felt. One week will convince you that Pepsodent does what nothing else has done. The results will amaze and delight you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

You will soon realize that this method is important, both to you and yours. And, when you know that, you will not return to ineffective ways. Cut out the coupon now.

Pleasanton Loses 9-4 To Calatone Team

The Calatone Water Co. tossers won in a loose game yesterday from the Pleasanton Merchants at the Coast League Park, taking an early lead of seven to five in the second inning and winning out 8 to 4. Buckley started on the mound for the Pleasanton Merchants but gave way to Heinle Lay after one and one-third innings, Heinle holding the winners to but one run from then on, scored in the seventh with two bunched hits.

The winners gathered a total of fifteen hits for twenty-one total bases. McClung pitched good ball and was never in danger with the lead built up by his teammates in the early frames.

Pleasanton scored three runs in the fourth inning with but one hit.

Perryman and Crowder starred with their hitting and base running. Elwood and Sinclair likewise featured in the hitting department.

TRADITIONS AND PEACE.

The shifting of borders a few miles to the north or south,—the signing of treaties or the lesson of the great World War cannot settle hereditary differences nor make ancient enemies sit peacefully at the same table.

The Trentino is called "Redeemed Italy" by a portion of its inhabitants. "Italia Irredenta" has become "Italia redenta" and a Southern Tyrol is the Trentino, but problems are not settled and cannot be while people of divergent culture must live together. The recent uprising of the Fascisti against Austrian influence has brought the situation before the world. Here is another Alsace-Lorraine, another field in which the seeds of war are often sown.

Civilized by the Romans and made a province of the empire to which the Italians love to feel they have fallen heir, the district remained under one or another form of Roman, Italian or Lombard control until 1927 when it was severed from Italy and given into the hands of Prince Bishops of Trent under more or less nominal German control. In 1803 the country became Austrian, in 1805 Bavarian. The French under Napoleon captured it in 1809 and held it until 1814 when it was again handed over to Austria. It remained Austrian until Italy's soldiers "redeemed" it during the World War.

Tyrol north of the Alps was Germanicized early. But the mountain barrier slowed up the southern advance of German culture. Despite direct Germanic control for a century and German influence for a much longer period, the Trentino was appreciably Germanicized only in the extreme north. In Bolzano (which the Austrians called Bozen), forty miles south of the main ridge of the Alps in the Adige Valley, there was an obvious conflict between the two cultures. The streets and squares bore German names and the store signs German characters. The slim steeple of the parish church was undeniably Gothic. But though one of the principal streets bore the name Laubengasse the graceful arches of its arcaded sides proclaimed Italy, and the trade in their shadows was largely carried on in Italian.

Most conspicuous of the German touches, perhaps, was that contributed by the quaintly garbed Austrian soldiers, the Kaiserjäger with the jaunty plumed hats. The note they struck in Trento was obviously alien, and their plumes even were not so jaunty as those of the Bersaglieri who now stand guard among their own people.

The cables are bringing each day new reports of clashes in The Trentino. The inhabitants of one of the world's beauty spots, a place designed for peace and meditation, are being forced by a difference of customs and tradition to ignore all of the terrible warning of war.

A false impression that California gold mines are peculiarly unsafe is one of the results of the Argonaut fire. Compared with coal or copper mines the deep rock gold mine,—as it is constructed on the Mother Lode,—in reality, offers few hazards. Many of the mines are equipped with all of the known safety appliances and, in addition, have what is known as wet shafts. The timbers here are always soaked. In addition most of the deep mines have two shafts equipped with skips and ladders and a system of ventilation which cannot be blocked by fire or cave-in. It should be the duty of those familiar with the mining business to correct an impression which is having its effects on the industry here.

The National Association of Travelers' Aid Societies will meet in Cincinnati on November 22. In 160 cities this organization gives personal assistance, guidance and counsel to approximately 2,000,000 persons a year. It directs young girls and women to reputable boarding houses and hotels, protects the feeble minded, insane and other travelers worried with serious social problems. Thousands of immigrant brides coming to marry their fiancés are met at ocean piers after the fiancés have been visited and it has been ascertained there is no legal or moral impediment to the marriage. A survey on social organization is to be one of the main features of the convention.

SHIPMENTS SPELL PROSPERITY.

Railways of the United States have placed orders, this year, for 122,953 freight cars, or more than the average orders for both the last five and the last ten years. In 1912, 1913 and 1916 only was the number greater and there remains two months and a half, for the record is up to October 15, in which additional orders will be placed. In the same time 1719 locomotives have been ordered, against a yearly average of 1483 for the five years preceding 1921.

The comparatively large orders for locomotives and cars, says the Railway Age, are predicated on the belief of railway managers that traffic will continue to move in increasing volume. In the fall of 1920 the railways handled the largest business of their history. The total number of cars loaded with freight in the four weeks ending October 14 of this year was only 2.9 per cent less than for the corresponding weeks of a year ago but the tonnage difference is much larger. In spite of the end of the coal strike, coal loadings are lighter. Ore shipments are also decreased.

There is a large increase in farm products and in manufactured goods indicating prosperity in the retail trade and a general movement of crops to market. It is also pointed out the loadings this year would be much greater if cars were available. Another encouraging feature is the heavy shipments of building materials and the predictions by those engaged in the construction business there is a prospect for a great deal of this work. Unless all past experience is misleading, the demands upon the railroads in the months and years immediately ahead are going to increase and they will have use for more additional facilities than they will be able to provide.

FAITH IN OAKLAND.

"We have faith in the future of Oakland and the Eastbay. This is destined to be a big city."

One of the great railroad executives of the West, William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific Company, is the speaker. He is discussing the purchase by the Southern Pacific of three hundred acres fronting the tracks of the company at its Sixteenth Street station, and announces that this great site will be used for terminal, port and industrial purposes.

The deal is one of the most important industrial developments in California. It means that this great western railroad is convinced that Oakland is to become the main railroad terminal on the coast. It means that President Sproule and his directors are aware of the tremendous economic importance of the slogan "where rail and water meet." Added to the ground already owned by the Southern Pacific, these three hundred acres constitute a site holding out dazzling promise of port and transportation development. President Sproule emphasizes this where he says: "It would have been a mistake for us to fail to acquire this property, lying, as it does, directly alongside ours."

In announcing the deal, the Southern Pacific executive stresses the fact that the company intends to cooperate with the municipality in developing the port of Oakland. This statement also is worthy of note, indicating as it does that the railroad expects to transfer freight and passengers on ocean-going vessels right here in Oakland Harbor, in the near future. It should not be forgotten that the Southern Pacific Company has had vast experience in maritime matters. This company picked another great port, New Orleans, for a terminal, and it now operates a considerable fleet of steamers from that city to New York. All of which is of the highest significance, demonstrating the faith which the Southern Pacific Company has in the future of Oakland as a world port.

WHAT IS BEAUTY?

Five Eskimo tribes, who never yet saw a white man, have been found by a Danish explorer on Baffin Island. The report states that when the Eskimos saw the white men they hid their wives and children, and prepared to give battle. Evidently the first impression created by the appearance of the Caucasians was unfavorable. Which brings one to the oft-asked question: "What is beauty?" The heavy beard of the explorers, their blue eyes and fair hair, white skins, and strange apparel were probably just as grotesque to these denizens of the North as yellow skins and slant eyes are to the average white man who first beholds an Asiatic.

Probably the Eskimos set down the explorers as devils, or as supernatural beings of some sort. Andre, the explorer who tried to reach the North Pole in a balloon, was never heard from. Only recently an indication of his fate reached civilization, when Eskimos told a party of explorers that a "devil" had descended from the skies among them, and that they had killed this dangerous visitor. Which, from the point of view of the Eskimo, was a natural and commendable act. And this leads us to the question whether civilization is much more merciful to the things or persons it does not understand?

NOTES AND COMMENTS

New York Sun: "Despite recent increases, the salaries of college teachers, taken as a whole, still fall short of the rewards that equal intellect and training may earn in some other forms of employment. Recently the authorities of one middle Western college announced that hereafter only unmarried might become instructors. The efforts of the family men to supplement their meager incomes by outside work made it impossible, so it seems, for them to attend properly to their duties. The wife of a member of the faculty of the University of California, Mrs. H. L. Bruce, asserts that the professor's wife must choose between childlessness or the anguish and humiliation of many years of debt and drudgery." A recent budget issued by a San Francisco expert on home economics stated that the average working girl needs at least $290 a year for clothes. This would look big to a professor's wife, declares Mrs. Bruce. Where such conditions obtain education is not on a sound basis."

How a lady talks, according to the Medford Mail Tribune: "Well, I'm funny. A new girl is working on my shift, and it would knock the wind out of everybody not running for office, to see the number of bright young men and heavy tax-payers who get hungry between meals since she came. They are so full of doughnuts, they are in the hole for last week's room rent. They can eat their heads off for all of me, but they don't have to get sore because I shoot 'em their Arbuckle. She's got a classy pair of earrings, but the hole for 'em is punched too high up on said ears. The place for 'em is on the dewlap, not where it's liable to impair her hearing. This new bird is always telling about 'all the dresses she's got. Elsie shut her up. She says, for Gawd sake wear one of 'em, I'm weary of seeing the one you got on. Mag Lots of Clothes' went right out in the kitchen and started windmilling with the pearl diver. There she is now. Excuse me, I gotta go water the starving Belgian who just blew in."

Kansas City Star: "The Philadelphia Public Ledger does not regard the discovery of America as the outstanding achievement of the late Christopher Columbus, but calls his most wonderful feat that of inducing Queen Isabella to pawn her jewels to back the enterprise, adding that if you don't believe it, try to get some woman interested to that extent in some enterprise of your own. The feat, however, does not seem so remarkable when you remember that Ferdinand was only mildly interested, and that it was probably his protest that encouraged Isabella to 'soak' the 'finery.'"

Child in Science Museum: "A statement by the Essen Bergwerks Zeitung, that Germany has expropriated by means of currency depreciation a sum ten times greater than the whole of the cash payments of reparations, should not be passed over unnoticed. That newspaper adds that the total foreign losses due to this cause, since July, 1921, are $125,000,000. From this standpoint it would seem that sympathy with Germany for the 'terrible' depreciation of her currency is both unnecessary and uncalled for."

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

The Marching Line.
We watched young Sam, the soldier, march away
With those to fill thinned ranks upon the line;
And O, the cheers they heard that summer day!
And O, the eyes that dimmed for You and Mine!
Marched, singing of a duty "Over There!"
A Cause to win to save the world from hell!
Marched to the beat of drums . . .
To silent prayer,
When reddens ran the Marne, young Sammy fell.

The Bread Line.
His broken body held his tortured soul—
Held fast to it, and would not let it go.
A Nation's gratitude? A beggar's dole!
'Twere better that he had not lived to know!

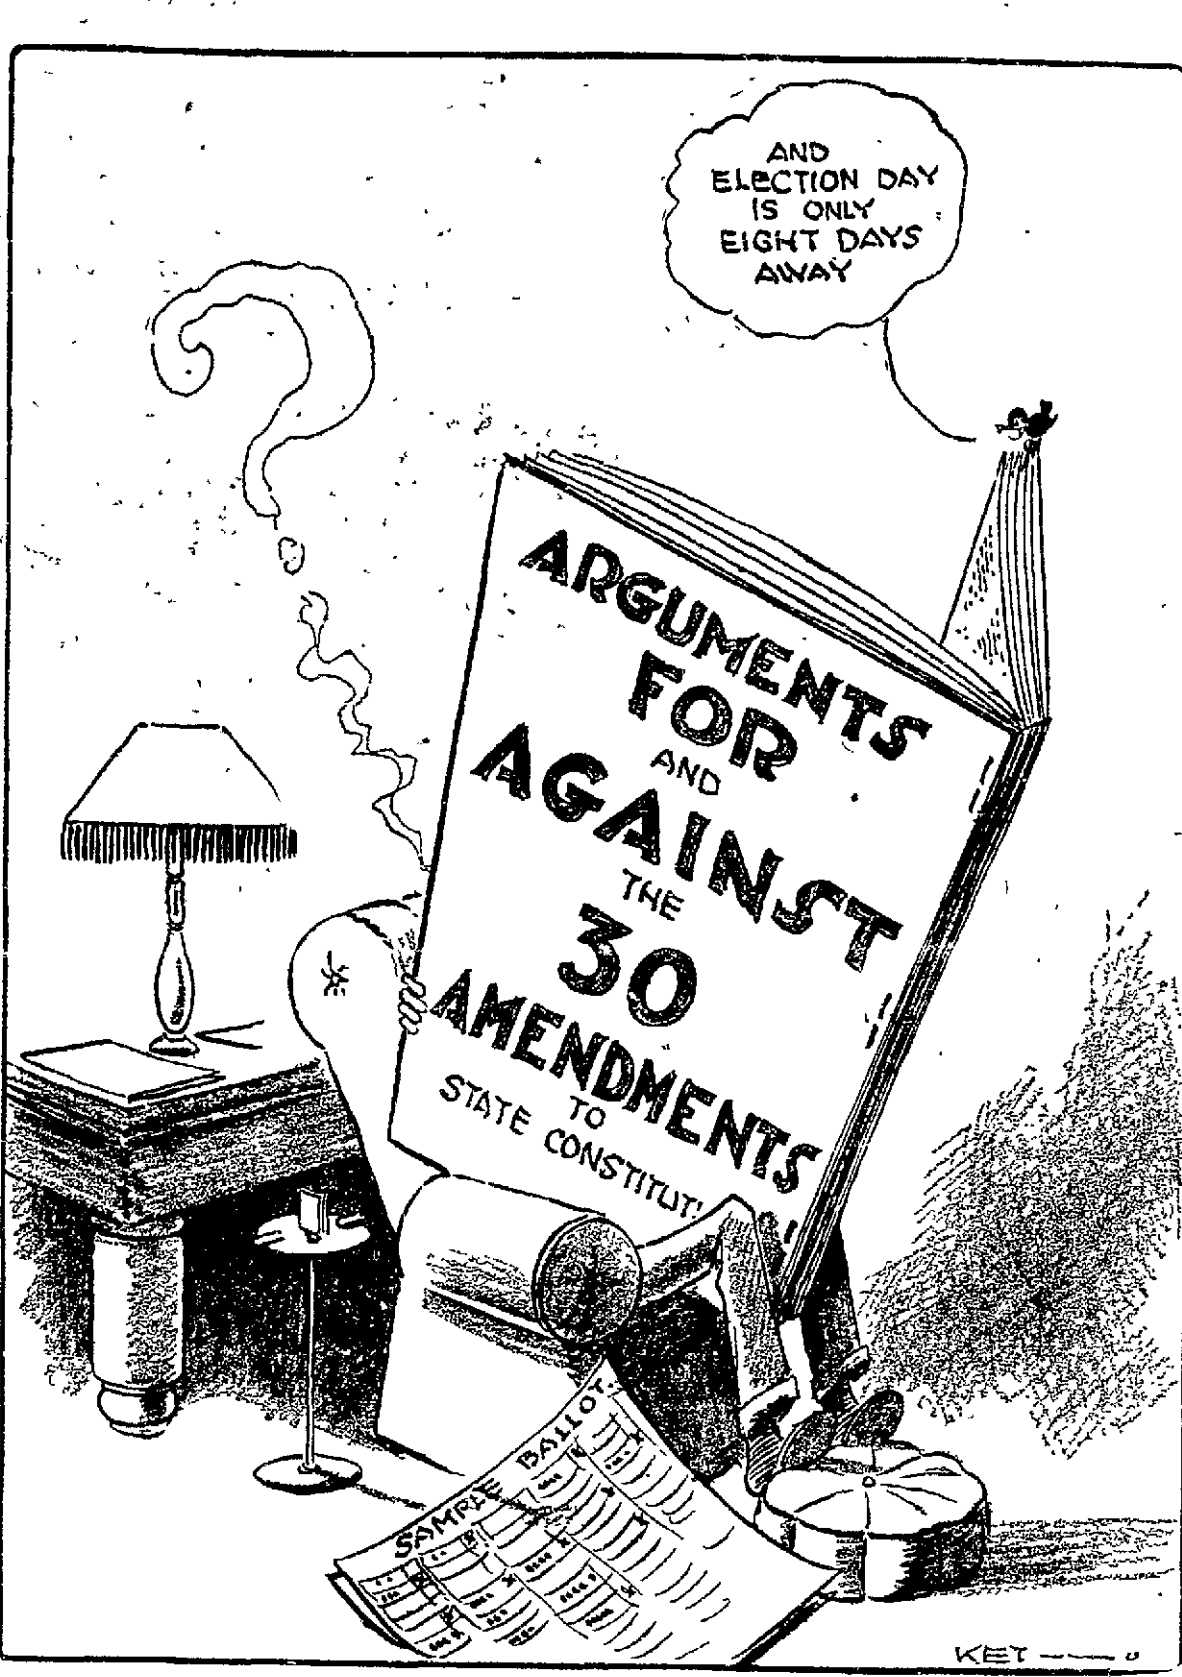

The Dotted Line.
How soon the busy world of men forgets!
New problems press, old issues to efface.
But O, O, it is the Debt of debts!
Not "outlived" while this planet keeps its place.
Did you but notice the pain in his young eyes—
His body paid the toll for Yours and Mine!
Change that stirk look to one of glad surprise!
The Bonus wait—sign on the dotted line!

BELLS OF LIMERICK.

Limerick, where the Irish rebels had their headquarters, has one of the most beautiful peals of bells in the world. They were made, in Italy by a young workman, who, after the toll of many years, produced a peal of bells which were so perfect in tone that even his critical judgment was satisfied. The bells were in a neighboring convent, but in the course of years war swept across that part of the land, and the bells were lost. His fortune overtook the bell founder and he left his native land, wandering about the world for years. Then, hearing that his bells had been taken to Limerick, he set out to hear their sweet tones once again. As his vessel sailed up the Shannon, borne upon the evening air from the towers of the cathedral came the music of his bells. He went forward and sat, listening, his gaze fixed upon the distant cathedral, but when the vessel came to anchor and they went to rouse him he was dead.—From the London Post.

"WHO STRUCK BILLY PATTERSON?"

In a letter to the editor of the New York Herald, Archie Rice, Californian, tells of the origin of the question, "Who struck Billy Patterson?"

John Philip Sousa's reference to the old mystery of who struck Billy Patterson recalls the only explanation I ever heard of the cause for that much-repeated query.

In June of 1894, while camping in the Yosemite Valley with Herbert Hoover and other college associates, we got up a great campfire gathering, to which were summoned only the college folk then among the hundreds of campers in that wonderful valley. Our campfire was in a natural amphitheater under the Royal Arch, up near Mirror Lake and close beside the icy Merced river. The registry that night showed men and women present from thirty-seven different colleges of America and Europe.

James Brett Stokes, Princeton '81, a giant who played guard at Princeton, related the story responsible for the question "Who struck Billy Patterson?"

In years gone by there was an annual feud night conflict between the university students at Oxford and the river boatmen. Billy Patterson was the recognized leader among the boatmen and a bruiser to be dreaded. To capture him became the special object of the English collegians.

This was attempted, but hurried away one rush night to an assembled were in black gowns and cowls and were masked. A mock tribunal was instituted. Billy was tried, found guilty, sentenced. He was to be guillotined. The beholding block was revealed, the headman stood beside it with a huge battle-ax.

Billy, bound hand and foot, was placed kneeling before the curved depression and his throat fitted down into it and the blindfold placed over his eyes. The command was given. The blow fell upon Billy's powerful neck. It was only a cord that had been wet in cold water. Billy remained inert. Moments passed. Billy had fainted? No, Billy was dead.

The whole thing had been very real to him. His heart had stopped for all time. The affrighted students removed their disguises, spirited the body out to the river's edge and left it.

"Who struck Billy Patterson?" remains a mystery.

SPIRIT of the STATE PRESS

Pomona newspapers gave Kings county a fine send off for being progressive enough to keep an exhibit at the Los Angeles county fair. Riverside and Los Angeles also said nice things. Getting our own county before the right sort of public gatherings north and south is a winning card and the Kings displays at Sacramento, Pomona and Riverside have amply proven this.—Hanford Sentinel.

A conspicuous instance of effective chamber of commerce work was the opening on September 7 in Eureka, Humboldt county, of a community built redwood hotel, as a result of the successful drive for $270,000 handled by the Eureka chamber of commerce.—Chico Enterprise.

The outstanding feature in political circles in the state during the past week is the open avowal of hundreds of Democrats that they intend to vote for Friend W. Richardson for governor. Practically every expression made by these Democrats is that they cannot support Woodlief because they do not consider him a true representative of their party.—Woodland Mail.

If you see a man plumping the line of good citizenship and general correct living, you need never ask what he believes. On the other hand, if he is not living right, whatever he may believe is not worth a continental darn.—Woodland Democrat.

DIRTY HANDS.

I have to wash myself at night before I go to bed.
An' wash before I'm fed.
An' Ma inspects my neck an' ears an' Pa my hands an' shirt;
They seem to wonder why it is that I'm so fond of dirt.
But Bill—my chum—an' I agree that we have never seen A feller doing anything whose hands were white an' clean.

Bill's mother scolds the same as mine an' calls him in from play
To make him wash his face an' hands a dozen times a day.
Dirt seems to worry mother so, but when the plumber comes
His clothes are always thick with grease, his face is smeared with dirt.
An' he is not ashamed to show the smudges on his shirt.

The motorman who runs the car has hands much worse than mine,
An' I have noticed when we ride there's dirt in every line.
The carpenter who works around our house can mend a chair
Or put up shelves or fix the floor, an' mother doesn't care
That he's not in his Sunday best; she never interferes.
An' makes him stop his work to go upstairs to wash his ears.

The fellers really doing things, as far as I can see,
Have hands and necks and ears that are as dirty as can be;
The man who fixes father's car when he can't make it go
Most always has a snuffy face, his hands aren't white as snow.
But I must wash an' wash an' wash while everybody knows
The most important men in town have dirty hands and clothes.

FOUGHT FOR HIS RIGHTS.

John Roosevelt of Sayville, a cousin of the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt, won a verdict of 27 cents in the Suffolk County Supreme Court in a suit against the Long Island Railroad. The amount represents the fare on the Long Island Railroad between Jamaica and the Flatbush Avenue Station. Mr. Roosevelt brought suit for $1000 after he had been put off the train in East New York.

He had a commutation ticket to the Pennsylvania Station, where he intended to go, but changed his mind before he reached Jamaica and took the Brooklyn train. He asked the conductor for a slip to indicate his change of route, so he could go to the Flatbush Avenue Station, and the conductor on the second train demanded a fare from Jamaica to Brooklyn. When Mr. Roosevelt refused to pay it he was put off the train.—New York Times.

About YOUR HEALTH

Here Are Some Eye Facts Which Everyone Should Know

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A withered hand is a helpless and useless member. Its condition is due to atrophy—the scientific name for withering—of the muscles. In turn, the atrophy of the muscles may be due to atrophy of the nerves which direct the muscles.

Running to and from the brain or central nervous system are endless lines of nerves, which are like telephone wires running to and from the central office. When you touch a hot thing the nearest station at the end of that particular nerve line notifies the central office. Immediately there is sent back an order to the muscles to jerk your hand away from the hot thing you are touching.

This communication and the resulting action take place before you are conscious of what has happened. You may be sucking your thumb before you become conscious that you have been burned.

If the nerves are withered or atrophied they have lost their power to respond. They are dead and useless.

The higher special senses like hearing and seeing, have highly organized and delicate special nerves. The nerve of hearing is called the "auditory nerve." The nerve of sight is called the "optic nerve."

The optic nerve is really an extension forward and outward of the brain itself. It is as if the brain had shot out a finger in order to get closer to the world, and to be in constant touch with its affairs. Instead of a nerve of feeling, Nature created a powerful seeing organ. At the end of this finger of nerve tissue she placed a combination searchlight, telescope and microscope. Nothing is more marvelous in its structure or more effective for its purpose than the human eye.

You can see that, perfect as it is in health, the eye would be of no service if the optic nerve lost its power of construction. If the optic nerve withers or atrophies, the eye becomes a dead and useless thing.

There are several causes for adult blindness—cataract, glaucoma, atrophy of the optic nerve. Cataract and the resulting blindness can be removed by an operation. Glaucoma is frequently amenable to treatment, with improvement of sight. But atrophy of the optic nerve! This is well-nigh incurable.

The oculist uses an instrument called the "ophthalmoscope." This is a little mirror, perforated in the center, and having fitted back of the hole a series of minute lenses set in a revolving disc. The doctor looks through the perforation into the patient's eye, which is illuminated by the reflection of a lamp directed into the eye by the mirror. The disc is revolved until the right lens for that particular eye is found, and then the doctor sees all the details of the deep parts of the patient's eye.

Out of the middle of the optic disc or nerve-head comes a blood-vessel, the retinal artery. This divides into branches which pass over the edge of the disc to supply the retina of the eye with blood and nourishment. This blood is returned through veins uniting in one vessel, which passes back into the optic nerve alongside the artery.

In health, the optic disc is a delicate pink. In optic nerve atrophy it is white and dead-appearing. It may even have a silvery appearance. The pinkness is all gone, and the blood-vessels are contracted. The life has gone from the nerve, and it is a dead and useless thing, incapable of transmitting to the brain pictures of the beautiful world. Sight has been replaced by blindness.

Fortunately, optic nerve atrophy is an uncommon disease. Serious blood diseases and drug poisoning are among the chief agents producing atrophy.

LEAVE TUBE TO BOARD IS DAVIE PLEA

In the event that it is decided to link Oakland and Alameda by a tube under the estuary, the type and size of the structure should be left to the judgment of the board of supervisors, according to the belief of Mayor John L. Davie and the city commission.

At the meeting of the board of supervisors today, a letter in favor of the proposed tube was read from W. G. Tibbitts, chairman of a committee made up of representatives of industries along the estuary. The letter contained an account of a meeting of the committee in the city hall last Thursday for the purpose of bringing the matter before the mayor of Oakland, at which Mayor Davie was present.

It was the opinion of the mayor that, because Alameda and Oakland are the two cities mainly concerned in the erection of the proposed tube, the supervisors should decide the type and dimensions of the structure, and whether or not it should be built. Tibbitts, who signed the letter as chairman of the committee, the names of the following industries on the estuary were attached: The Alaska Packers, E. K. Wood Lumber Co., Hanlon Dry Dock and Ship Building Co., Sunset Lumber Co., Atlas Imperial Diesel Engine Co., Bonds & Tibbitts Ship Building and Dry Dock Co., Dow Pump Works, Rhodes & Jamieson, Wadell Lumber Co., W. P. Stone & Son, Bethlehem Ship Building Corporation, Western Milling Co., Charles Nelson Co., Union Gas Engine Co., Crowley Launch and Tugboat Co., Robertson Shipyard, San Francisco Bridge Co., Towell Bros., Pacific Tank and Pipe Co.

Woman Faints While Cooking; Burned

BERKELEY, Oct. 30.—Fainting as she stood over a stove cooking breakfast, Mrs. Pearl Thomas, 41, wife of Robert Thomas, postal clerk, was probably fatally burned shortly after 9 o'clock this morning at her home, 1812 Stuart street.

Mrs. Thomas was engaged in frying bacon when taken ill. She fell face forward onto the stove, her head going into the pan of sizzling bacon. Thomas, who was in an adjoining room preparing for work, heard screams and found his wife's clothes ablaze and her hands and face almost charred. He summoned aid and the woman was removed to Temple Hospital, where her burns were found to be serious. Patrolman Frank Waterbury administered first aid to the woman at her home in order to relieve her suffering.

Mrs. Thomas, who is colored, has been subject to epileptic fits for some time, according to members of her family. At the hospital it was said that she might succumb to her injuries.

Double Program Proves Popular With Film Fans

WALLACE REID, whose latest film, "The Ghost Breaker," heads a big double bill, now playing at the American theater.

May McAvoy in "The Top of New York" Is Second Feature of Program.

One of the best programs of the season is being offered this week at the American theater where Wallace Reid's latest laugh provoker, "The Ghost Breaker," is heading an attractive double bill. May McAvoy in "The Top of New York" is being presented as the second feature. "The Ghost Breaker" is one of the funniest films Wallace Reid has ever made. He is ably supported by Lila Lee and Walter Hiers. The story leads from the feudal districts of Kentucky to Spain, where the mistress of a haunted castle, Walter Hiers' characterization of the negro servant causes much laughter. May McAvoy presents a different phase of New York life in "The Top of New York" with Mae Murray as the next attraction. Advertisement.

"Three Cheers and a Oui, Say We, for the Legion's Yankee-Paree!" Here are a few of the members of the corps of young women, who, clad in the colors of America and France, will sell programs at the forthcoming Yankee-Paree Show at the Auditorium. The proceeds of the sales will be devoted to the upkeep of the Legion's clubrooms for the coming year. The girls in the picture are, left to right: LILABEL BLISS, CORDELLA NORWOOD, MARGARET MacDONALD, CAROLINE COOK, JOSEPHINE JENKINSON, EDNA WHITE, VIRGINIA SPENCER, VERA H. DE and CLAIRE SPENCER.

TRICOLOR GARB CHOSEN BY GIRLS FOR 'PAREE' SALE

Garbed in the tri-colors of America and France, a corps of girls will sell programs during the Yankee-Paree show to be given at the municipal auditorium during Armistice Week, November 4 to 11. The corps was organized by Oakland Post No. 5, American Legion. The programs will contain the events, from night to night, that will be seen at the auditorium, as well as the Armistice Day parade and the literary exercises at Lakeside park.

Awards will be made to the girls disposing of the greatest number of programs. These include a cedar chest, a set of silver and other articles appropriate for a young woman's household.

It is stated by the committee of arrangements that no expense is being spared to make the show a big success. The committee has adopted as the slogan for the show "Give Them More Than Their Money's Worth."

The funds derived from the show will go toward the upkeep of the Legion's clubrooms for the coming year. It is announced that the use of the clubrooms will not be restricted to Legionnaires, but that all former service men will be invited to share the Legion's hospitality.

Midnight Hour Barred at Y. W. For Hallowe'en

Rules of witchcraft of more than 1000 years standing went down to defeat today before the regulations of the local Young Women's Christian Association. This occurred when a scant majority of those in charge of the institution overruled a vehement minority who contended that the 11:30 closing hour for Y. W. C. A. functions should be set aside tomorrow night in order that the association's Hallowe'en party might continue uninterrupted.

Schools Combine In Hallowe'en Jinks

SAN LEANDRO, Oct. 30.—Participated in by faculty members of the three San Leandro public schools, McKinley, Lincoln and Washington, a Hallowe'en jinx was held at the latter institution's auditorium this afternoon. Individual stunts by attending members, entertainment acts, dancing and refreshments were included in the program. Mrs. Charlotte Lynch was chairman.

Two Damage Suits Against S. P. on Trial

Two damage suits, growing out of an automobile accident at Lincoln and Bay streets, Alameda, January 2, 1920, were brought to trial before Superior Judge St. Sure today. Olivas was a passenger in an auto owned by Mrs. Johnson, which was run down by an electric train. It is charged.

"Who Killed Quist?" Big Mystery Will Be Solved

Quist lay back in his chair—dead. Before him on the carpet growled a ferocious wolf dog.

Just outside the room, Harris, the butler, sat waiting patiently for a signal from the old man.

But Quist would give the butler no more sign. He was dead.

In a few hours every Oaklander was asking the question, "Who Killed Quist?" for the police declared that he had been killed. It was easily the most startling murder mystery that had thrilled newspaper readers of the great Eastbay.

Quist had died there before the very eyes of the faithful butler, protected against intrusion by the ferocious domesticated wolf. He did not die a natural death. Nor did he commit suicide.

Alexander Quist was murdered. So said the police.

LIFE IS CHOKED OUT.

Tootles attributed it to "Invisible Fingers." Invisible Fingers had clutched at "Queer" Quist's throat and had choked out his life. But Inspector Scott laughed at Tootles and his fanciful theories.

Alexander Quist had guarded his life with the greatest care. A high fence with a spiked top surrounded the "Jungle of trees and brush in the center of which was the Chateau. All day long and all night watchmen patrolled this fence to see that no one climbed over it. Inside this fence was another and still a third.

A pack of savage wolfhounds, read the rest.

'ENTER MADAME' TO BE REPEATED

BERKELEY, Oct. 30.—Gilda Varese's comedy, "Enter Madame," presented last week by the Greek Theater Players, will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night in Wheeler Hall. The play was enthusiastically received on its presentation at the university and was declared by critics to be one of the best productions staged by the same players.

As "Madame," Medea Radzina, Russian actress, has captivated audiences both in Berkeley and in San Francisco, where she is appearing in the same play at the Plaza Theater. Sam Hume as "Gerald," the husband, gives an unusually good interpretation of his part, while others in the cast are Lloyd Corrigan as the cook; Virginia Sciaroni as the maid; Mary Morris, Irving Pichel, Mildred Levy, Dan Totheron, Irene McSwain and Kitchi Nishino. The performances will begin at 8:15 o'clock.

Damages Suit Asks $25,000 of Motorist

MAKING $25,000—Claiming that a negligent operation of an automobile driven by W. Rattini caused a collision with their car, doing heavy damage and causing severe shock to their nervous systems, W. E. George, general manager of the Coast-Portland Cement Company, and Mrs. George, filed suit in Superior Court today in which they seek judgment for $25,000.

Hallowe'en Party at Country Home Held

WOODLAND, Oct. 30.—One of the delightful Hallowe'en parties of the week-end was given Saturday by Misses Elizabeth Blakesley and Emma Schultz. They entertained at bridge at the country home of Mrs. Lou Ulrich, near Woodland. The guest list included: Mesdames Lucile Browning, Little, Lorraine Traynam, Zella Deslmon, Almuth Rowe, Amy Little; Misses Ida Ludden, Carol Chiles, Revs. Shaffer, Beth Pleasant, Jean Bragg, Helen Stewart, Margaret Harling, Lella Hecke, Eloise Hare, Martha Hecke and Helen Harlan. ## WILL IN WATCH CASE MAY BLOCK ESTATE FIGHT

The filing of a will inside a watch case will prevent a bitter contest over the $10,000 estate of James H. Spencer, who before his death held an interest in the Oakland Furniture Company, it is believed.

The will is written on a leaf torn from a note book and it reads: "All my real and personal property I leave to my wife." It was dated July 4, 1922 and signed "James H. Spencer."

The widow, Mrs. Carrie H. Spencer, 5076 Congress avenue, came across the will recently when she accidentally opened the case of a watch which belonged to her husband.

With the filing of the will today, the widow petitions, through Attorney Q. Lomb, for letters of administration with the will annexed. Contest over the estate developed when the widow sought to be appointed administratrix.

Her petition was met with another filed by Mrs. Alice Newman, 1850 Sixth avenue, a sister, claiming a share of the estate for herself and two brothers and a sister, who are: George S. and J. D. Spencer and Mrs. Jennie George, all of Burlingame.

Spencer died on July 29, at the age of 65 years.

Silver Lake Camp Shows $146 Profit

STOCKTON, Oct. 30.—After paying its way the Stockton municipal camp at Silver Lake closed its season with a net profit of $146.61 in the bank. It is considered optional that a first-year camp should make such a showing, experts say.

The camp entertained 374 Camp Fire Girls and Campers' sons. During the season 208 adult enjoyed the camp.

Not a single case of serious illness developed, nor were there any but minor injuries sustained—not a broken limb or a sprained ankle. During the summer a magnificent home and log lodge was built, permanent kitchen erected, water piped and many other undertakings carried out.

The season's report has just been handed to the commissioners.

DUMP FIRES NOT SOLVED

Following two one-week fires on the municipal garbage dump, city authorities are striving to remove the cause of spontaneous combustion which exists there, but admit that they are not sure what makes the garbage combust.

The fires are noted for the penetrating power of their smoke, as they lay a heavy cloud of gas fumes all over the dump and sometimes into the edge of West Oakland. The fire department, according to Chief Sam Short, stands in terror of these fires because of the unpleasantness of fighting them. The fires smoulder for a week or so underground and need oceans of water to put them out.

The second fire within a month is officially out, but the officials expect another one soon.

Chemists for the city are analyzing some of the sub-surface garbage in an endeavor to find what started the flames. Meantime, garbage is being sent to another portion of the dump.

BENNETT WINS 100-MILE RACE AT COTATI OVAL

Frank Elliott Finishes Second and Murphy Third in 100-Mile Event.

By EMIL REINHARDT.
Bennett Hill made it two in a row yesterday when he won the 100-mile winners' event at the Cotati oval. He won the Fresno Raisin Day classic practically the same way—just a heady race, that's all.

From the very start he led the field of speed kings and not once until the checker flag was lowered did he stop at the pits. Frank Elliott, almost on the heels of Hill, finished second. Murphy third and Harry Hartz fourth. Hill's time for the distance was 32 minutes and 38 seconds, an average of 114 miles per hour.

Tommy Milton, the 1921 champion, met with some tough luck while covering the first lap of the event. Flying splinters broke a lens in his goggles and forced the glass into one of his eyes. He has only one good eye and this was the eye that received the broken glass. He was rushed from the field to Santa Rosa, where medical attention was given and just how serious the accident may be has not yet been determined.

HILL DEFIES DEATH.
Defying death from the forty-ninth lap until the finish, Hill drove his steed with a right tire hanging in shreds. Spectators in the grandstand thought him mad and hoped every minute he would go to the pit for a new tire but he drove on, not slowing down one particle, holding the crowd breathless till the very end.

The first ten laps of the race were not as fast as usual. The drivers seemed slow in getting the broken glass.

Hill took the lead and not until the thirteenth lap did it seem that he would be able to pull away from the rest of the field. At this point he fairly flew, increasing speed all the while until he reached the 113-mile-per-hour mark. This was the fastest time made during the day. Jimmie Murphy, the San Francisco boy, in his yellow Durant chariot, did not seem to get under way during the entire race. Only once, during the fifteenth lap did he look as though he might walk away with the honors. He opened up at a terrific speed, passing Elliott and Hartz. This slight brought mad-dening cheers from the grandstand. They wanted Jimmie to race the field, and this he was trying to do. Hartz, provoked at Murphy's gain, started a duel with Murphy, and Elliott hung on like mad.

HARTZ PASSES MURPHY.
In the twenty-fourth lap Hartz finally passed Murphy, who went to the pit for a tire change. It was the old story once more of speed and rubber, the former winning in this case. Going to the pit put Murphy a lap behind Hill, who was still leading.

Shaking off Murphy, Hartz then went after Hill. He showed more speed, but something went wrong with his motor, and this forced him to the pits for repairs.

Elliott stepped into second place and maintained this position till the finish. At this time, Hill was a half a lap ahead of Elliott and a lap ahead of Murphy. It was at this time that Hill held the spectators breathless while he drove on a trackless tire.

During the seventy-first lap things started. Elliott was making a gain on Hill. Wildly cheering, the enthusiastic throng sprang to their feet, expecting any minute to see Elliott go into first place. Hill drove steadily on and won by a quarter of a lap.

There were two motorcycle events, a ten and twenty-mile race. Ralph Hepburn, driving an Indian, won the ten-mile race in 3 minutes and 42 seconds. Jim Davis was second and Ray Weishaar, third.

In the twenty-mile event, Ray Weishaar won, "Terrible" Terry, second. Time, 11 minutes and 48 seconds.

Spanish Center to Hear of Mexico

Experiences during her recent visit to Mexico with a description of the people of that country will be given in Spanish by Miss Myrtle Bailey before the Oakland Spanish Center tomorrow evening. Miss Bailey was one of the Oakland teachers who took advantage of the offer of President Obregon to study in the summer school of the University of Mexico during the last summer.

The Oakland Spanish Center devotes itself to the study of Central and South American countries and to the developing of a greater spirit of friendship and understanding between the people of this country and those of the Latin-American republics. The meetings are held every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Alden Library, Fifty-second street and Telegraph avenue, Oakland, and are open to the public.

DENIES LARCENY CHARGE.

William Brose today entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of petty larceny before Police Judge Smith. The date for the trial was set for November 15. He was arrested on complaint of E. O. Getchell, an employee of a grocery store at 476 Ninth street. He is accused of stealing groceries valued at $20.

NEW MANAGER OF BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU COMING

Elmer J. Hertel Will Begin His Duties Here On Wednesday.

The new manager-counsel of the Better Business Bureau of the Advertising Club, Elmer J. Hertel of San Diego, takes up his duties with the local bureau Wednesday. Hertel is the successor of Charles H. Chace, who organized and developed the Oakland Better Business Bureau, and who recently resigned.

The choice of Hertel was made, according to W. LEMMA T. HERTZ, R. Whitthorne, chairman of the executive board, only after a careful canvass had been made for the most experienced man available.

Hertel has made an enviable record in the San Diego bureau, where he has been manager-counsel for the past two years. He is highly endorsed by the board of directors of the San Diego Better Business Bureau.

Oakland's new Better Business Bureau manager recently received special commendation on his elimination of a new type of oil fraud that was taking about $10,000 a week from small investors in San Diego, with no possibility of return. Hertel has also done excellent work in handling false advertising cases. Suit clubs, silverware clubs and other objectionable schemes for defrauding the public have been kept out of San Diego through Hertel's work in the bureau.

It is probable that a financial department for the investigation of "get-rich-quick" schemes will be inaugurated in the Oakland bureau very shortly. The Oakland Bureau is considered one of the leading bureaus on the Pacific Coast and has at the present time the largest budget of the nine coast bureaus.

Berkeley Thief Takes Motometers

BERKELEY, Oct. 29.—A motometer thief was busy in Berkeley over the week-end, according to reports made to the police by motorists. Three missing their motometers were Otto Stelger, 1049 Mariposa avenue; C. R. Corbuser, 1122 University avenue; Herbert Graham, 1808 Fairview avenue and J. C. Peacock, 5819 McCall street, Berkeley.

WOMAN HURLED FROM N. Y. ROOF, SUSPECT POLICE

Two Found Slain in City's Street Stir Officials With New Mysteries.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Two new murders, one of a young woman who was lured to the roof of an office building, police believe, and then hurled to her death, and the other of a man whose body was found, bullet riddled and wrapped in a burlap bag and left in the gutter in front of St. Paul's Lutheran church, are being investigated by the police.

The woman was identified by Frank Kempler as his wife. The police were told by Kempler's brother that she had been melancholy recently, and might have committed suicide. Detectives, however, are investigating the murder theory.

Aaron Swatburg, a day watchman, told the police that as he was dressing to go to work today he saw a dark object hurled past his window, strike several clothes lines and land in a court yard which separates the house in which he lives from a seven-story office building.

It was still dark, he said, and he could not see the yard from his window. On his way to work he found the body of the young woman in the yard.

Detectives investigating her death found that the office building was locked and the door leading to the roof was barred. Finger prints of the young woman, however, were found on the coping of the roof, indicating she had engaged in a fight.

SON OF SUNDAY SAYS HE DIDN'T HOLD GAY PARTY

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3. (United Press).—Although the address of the house raided was that of Billy Sunday Jr., according to police, the son of the famous evangelist today declared that he had not participated in the alleged gay party that attracted the officers.

Four men and three women were released on bail. The raid followed complaint of neighbors, who said they were disturbed frequently in the early hours by revelry in the same house.

struggle before she was finally hurled to her death.

Examination of the man's body found in the burlap bag disclosed a broken right shoulder and other signs of injury, and led the police to the belief that he was slain after

Aliens Have No Constitutional Rights, Is Ruling

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—"In the opinion of this court, an alien resident in the United States, has absolutely no constitutional rights," Federal Judge George T. Page declared today in refusing a writ of habeas corpus to five members of the I. W. W., who imposed upon them for violation of the espionage act, during the war, were rearrested by immigration authorities for deportation.

A pistol has been devised in England for killing trees without felling them.

Small Car Hit by Trailer, Wrecked

E. Reudy, 4450 East Fourteenth street, owns a small car that is not much, but it gets him from here to there. At least it did, before this morning, when a trailer broke loose from a truck owned and driven by J. Aronson, 748 Twenty-sixth street. Now an attempt is being made to rehabilitate Reudy's car at the expense of Aronson.

It was standing by the curb at Fifth street and Broadway when the trailer broke away from the passing truck. It swung to the left on its two wheels and crashed into the hood of the inoffensive car. It was found that the hood of the machine was a wreck and the ignition put out of commission.

JEWELRY STOLEN.

Jewelry valued at several hundred dollars was today reported stolen to the police by R. W. Abram, 818 Forty-second street. The entrance to the house was gained by forcing a side window. The thieves took three watches and two rings.

Keep California Free from Political Control of Industry

We represent many owners of real property in California. The tax burden on real property, which falls ultimately on tenants as well, and the tax burden on public utilities, which falls ultimately on rate payers, have become oppressive.

The great bulk of our California taxes are laid upon us by popular votes and not by the local and state legislative authorities. The people are too prone to vote for bonds and other expenses without calculating the cost to themselves in taxes. When they get the tax bill, they groan and wonder who saddled them with such burdens.

from Enormous Debt

State Controller Ray L. Riley in his 1921 report, recently published, says:

"During the past decade the total bonded indebtedness for all forms of government in California has increased from $93,906,423 to $321,616,238.66, or 242 per cent, while the wealth of the State has increased about 60 per cent. This tremendous increase that aggregates more than 3 per cent of the total wealth of the State should have the attention of all tax-paying bodies. California's credit must not be jeopardized by over-financing and the same ratio of increase during the next ten years would impose confiscating tax burdens upon the people."

"During the past year the total amount expended for interest and redemption of debt was $27,559,297. To produce this amount it would require a tax rate of 56 cents on every $100 of assessed valuation."

from Destructive Taxes

In face of that warning, a proposed constitutional amendment has been put on your ballot to be voted on November 7th which creates a powerful new commission, called the Water and Power Board, and authorizes it, without further reference to the people or the legislature, to issue state bonds to the enormous amount of half a billion dollars. That bond issue will multiply the state's debt more than six times. The board is authorized to invest the money in water and power speculations and "to do any and all things necessary or convenient for the conservation, development, storage and distribution of water, and the generation, transmission and distribution of electric energy." It is authorized also "to purchase, acquire, produce, manufacture or otherwise provide facilities, materials and supplies, raw or finished, and any property or thing necessary or convenient to the accomplishment of the purposes of this article."

The board is authorized to fix its own rates, which need not be uniform, so that particular localities or industries could be favored. The proposed amendment makes an appointive board, sitting at Sacramento, the arbitrary masters of the credit and the industry of the State of California. The amendment even authorizes the board to appoint and fix the compensation of such employees as it may require and exempts the board from the state civil service. This is bureaucracy in its completest form. We have had sufficient experience with government by bureaus to know that we don't want any more. California, prosperous as it is, cannot stand the proposed addition to the state debt and the proposed arbitrary control of industry by a board of politicians. Give a political board unrestricted authority to hire employees and fix their compensation, and give them 500 million dollars of taxpayers' money to play with, and in a year you will see the biggest political machine and the biggest tax bills that any state has ever had.

Vote NO on number 19 on your ballot November 7th

Winifred Black Writes FOLKS AND about THINGS

I HAD too many pretty patients," said a well-known dentist in the West the other day, when he went into court to answer to his wife's suit for divorce. "My wife couldn't stand it—that's all. 'Every time she came to my office and saw a pretty woman either climbing into the chair or climbing out of it, she cried. At first I laughed about it, and then I was sorry, but afterward I was mad."

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS

And yet—she's really wrong.

The poor man must make himself agreeable to the woman who comes to him in the way of his profession.

If he doesn't do that, he won't have money enough to buy pretty things for the woman—really does love. And she ought to think of that—and be reasonable.

Hardy, of course it's hard!

It's all very well to talk about being high-minded and above small jealousies. And of course a really well-poised, sensible woman is high-minded and refuses to allow herself to be worried by the pretensions of the world as far as her husband is concerned.

But all these things take time.

You can't expect a bride to learn everything at once, and it takes time and experience and a lot of tears to learn that a man who is really in love with his wife doesn't care a snap of his finger for all the pretty women in the world—not even if his wife is a plain little body without dimples or a fascinating smile to her name.

He chose her out of all the world—just her.

He might have chosen one of those women, maybe, that make her so jealous.

But he didn't.

If he had been so awfully susceptible to beauty—why didn't he? And then, after all, business is business.

A man can't choose his patients for that, that or the other reason. For creature, I suppose there are times enough when he'd like to.

But the main thing the jealous little bride ought to learn and keep learning as long as she lives is that it isn't other women who matter—it's the man.

Many a man can no more help making love to every woman who will give him even half a chance than he can help breathing—and nobody takes him seriously—except the poor thing he has been foolish enough to marry.

Every woman who is in the least attractive in any kind of way knows this type of man the minute she sets her eyes on him. And she either leads him on and then makes fun of him, or she gets away from him as quickly as she can.

THE OTHER SORT

The other sort of man—she knows, too.

There's no mistake about him, and he doesn't have to be a Gela-had, either, or anything else superman.

Probably these pretty women who gave you so much worry, little Mrs. Dentist, never even thought of your husband, except when they wished that he was dead, as most people do wish when the dentist is operating.

Who are you going to pick out for your next husband?

A farmer, who'll take you to live on a lonely ranch?

Look out—if he's the wrong sort of man he'll find something at the crossroads post-office and flirt with her—if she's 40 years old and without a single attraction,

Cap Men

Let's see—

Some day you'll make a trip—

The fortune teller said you would—

And so you will—

Then take unto yourself this tip—

If on your journey you would find—

Contentment—and enjoy yourself—

Be kind to every cap man you may meet—

The Porter on the train will be—

The first cap man to cross your path—

And he will smile quite pleasantly—

And take your bags—and lead the way—

To cushioned seat—and how quite low—

And all the time he's doing this—

He watches you with well trained eyes—

And takes your measure—

And if your measurements are broad—

He'll pave the miles along your trail—

With kindly deeds—

Well knowing that the future holds—

A sure reward—

Be kind to him—you'll not regret—

The next cap man that comes will be—

The passenger Conductor—

And he will stand with visage grim—

The while you're searching every place—

You could have put your ticket—

At last you find it in your sock—

And he unrolls a yard or so—

And punches it all full of holes—

Then keeps it—

And anxious days go by your head—

But still he won't return it—

It does no good to follow him—

With pleading face—he scorns you—

But he will give it back again—

Just as you are about to swoon—

Be patient—don't let this cap man get your goat.

The next cap man to harass you—

Will be the bell boy in the place—

Where you are stopping—

His little Tommy Atkins cap—

In on awry—

And he has got a most appraising eye—

Be kind to him—

And grease his itching talons now and then—

And if you chance to stroll one day—

Where all the world seems mad—and you're confused—

And you search for one friendly face—

To set you right—

I'll tell you of a cap man true—

Who'll never turn his face from you—

In any town—on any day—

Look for a cap man dressed in gray—

A Postman old and seedy too—

And tell him what is worrying you—

I'll wager, friend—where'er you roam—

You'll think you've met a man from home.

A Thing Not to Be Explained

It is narrated of two colored men that they set forth one night to borrow a hog. Not until nearly daylight did they succeed in borrowing one from the pigpen of a planter. Having slaughtered the prize they decided that it should be left in the cabin of one of them until the following night, when the other would come to claim his share.

During the day the present custodian, while immersing the carcass in a barrel of brine to prevent it from spoiling, decided that he needed all the meat for himself. Accordingly he removed it to a suitable hiding place and then, returning home, awaited the arrival of his partner in the enterprise of the night before.

About eight o'clock the second negro arrived, carrying an empty sack over his arm.

"What's de meat, Sam?" he asked, as he entered the cabin.

"In dat barrel of brine over yonder behind de back do'." Jes' go over and he'll see it to yore shore."

The caller rolled up his sleeves and immersed his arms in the brine.

"Tain't no meat here," he said, after a thorough search.

"I ain't s'prised one bit," said Sam. "Rats is gettin' so bad 'round yere I don't know what I'm gwine do. Dey carries off ever' thing." I spects dey was eatin' dat po'k w'en I heerd 'em nibblin' today w'ile I was layin' down tryin' to sleep."

His friend stiffened suspiciously.

"How come dey could nibble a hole in de barrel, eat all de po'k an' still de brime don't run out?" he demanded.

Sam took a deep breath.

"Dat," he said, "is de mystery."

The Goddess With Golden Tears

CHAPTER 192

THE Germans believed in goddesses as well as gods. A goddess named Freya seems to have been liked best.

Freya was the goddess of love. She was a beautiful goddess. Those who gazed upon it wondered at its brilliance.

A sad story was told about Freya. She brought happiness to those who loved among mortal men, but in her own great love affair she failed.

The person she loved was not a god but still was something more than a man. His name was Odr. He loved her at first and they were married. Soon after came a dreadful day for Freya. Her husband left her!

The lovely goddess could not bear to lose him. She went far and wide to seek him. In many strange lands she traveled, but she could not discover a single trace. As she searched, hot tears flowed down her cheeks. Each tear had a golden color, as if indeed it were a bit of melted gold.

It is hard to say whether the name for our week-day, Friday, comes from Freya or not. It may have been Freya's day at one time. On the other hand, it may have been Frigg's day.

Freya was another German goddess, the wife of Woden. As we study the olden stories, we find that the same tales were sometimes told of both Freya and Frigg. German story-tellers at times seem to have confused the two goddesses.

The emerald is the most precious of gems.

In the last ten years more than 1400 inventions to prevent train wrecks have been given trial, without satisfactory results.

To produce a complete automobile it requires labor in accessory, plate glass, fabric, metal and other mills; also in mines, farms and forests.

With the opening of its 127th year, Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., has the largest student body of record.

The Persian government has planned to send 60 army officers to France to receive their military education in the army school of that republic. On their return to Persia these men will be charged with the reorganization of the Persian army.

MAW ASKED A SINGING TEACHER 'BOUT MY VOICE AN' SHE SAID IT MIGHT COME IN HANDY IN CASE OF FIRE

I do not believe in birth bonuses for any one class, nor, indeed, for all classes. But I do believe in wages proportioned to the demands made upon the wage earner, and I think the salaries even our leading instructors are a public disgrace.

LONGBONE MAN. I am truly sorry, friend, that I can't "recommend" anyone to you. I only now folks through their letters and can't take the responsibility of bringing people together who might not come up to standard. I wish I could help you, for I like your letter, but I know you will appreciate my position.

Mary Austin, when lecturing at the University Summer School, said:

The Eastbay welkin is ringing to the stars' controversy. The pros and cons of the arguments, with interviews from educational leaders of the University of California, will be taken up in The Oakland TRIBUNE, Sunday, November 5. The following is one of the many letters received on this subject:

"Dear Jerry: I am so indignant and you seem to be the best one to take it out on, outside of my husband, of course."

"What is all this nonsense about the state allowing professors to have their wives as children?"

Now I am not a laborer's wife and no one has any more respect for a good education than I, but when it gets to a place where just because the wives of the men with the higher education are too lazy, or don't want to be tied down, or spoil their figures (not that I think it does) by having children and have to be paid to have them, it makes me sick.

A number of years ago I was thrown into contact with professors and associates, good deal and I surely heard this higher education talked to death and outside of the certain subjects they had been teaching for about twenty-five years, they were some of them the most ignorant, most ignorant people I ever saw.

We have not been here long and I do not know whether the U. of C. is kept up like the university in the state we came from, by the taxpayers (will have to look that up). We are taxpayers and if we are going to have to pay professors' wives to have babies instead of imported dogs that cost two or three hundred dollars, well, I am either going to quit paying taxes or go back where I came from.

I think it is every one's own business as to their having children and also agree with the professor that certain people probably have too many. I think that birth control should be taught these people, that is against the law, while these people with the "higher blood" are practicing it every day.

I have two girls and have always hoped to be able to send them to a university, but if it will make them think they have any "higher blood" than some other good family, I can't see why they should have the opportunity of getting a college education, but has gotten their education from life itself. I hope they never see the inside of a university.

U. of C. is kept up like the university in the state we came from, by the taxpayers (will have to look that up). We are taxpayers and if we are going to have to pay professors' wives to have babies instead of imported dogs that cost two or three hundred dollars, well, I am either going to quit paying taxes or go back where I came from.

I think it is every one's own business as to their having children and also agree with the professor that certain people probably have too many. I think that birth control should be taught these people, that is against the law, while these people with the "higher blood" are practicing it every day.

I have two girls and have always hoped to be able to send them to a university, but if it will make them think they have any "higher blood" than some other good family, I can't see why they should have the opportunity of getting a college education, but has gotten their education from life itself. I hope they never see the inside of a university.

My Marriage Problems

Oldie Garrison's New Phase Of Revelations of a Wife

The Accusation Mrs. Harrison Made.

Lillian's pose was proof even against Elizabeth Harrison's last ill-tempered dig concerning Mar. on's acrobatic triumph over the Harrison children.

"Must you go?" she said sweetly, frowning. "But I must go. I realize that this must be monotonous for you."

Was there the slightest stress upon the final pronoun? I could not tell, but I saw by the deepening flush upon my sister-in-law's cheeks that Lillian's feminine rapturist thrust had penetrated her defenses. Her voice, however, was as saccharine as ever as she made her counter thrust.

"A child's performance cannot help being monotonous to every one except the mother, don't you think?" she smiled, and drifted out of the room—she had reached the door as she finished speaking—before Lillian could have answered her even if she had wished to do so.

"That woman will bust before night if she doesn't get a chance to vent that suppressed venom on somebody," Lillian commented when the door had closed upon Mrs. Harrison.

"I wouldn't be in Mary's shoes," I said, "if her mother, in her present mood, finds out about that Oriental necklace."

"Neither would I," Lillian returned, "but I'll bank on Mary O'Brien, if you please."

Mary was gazing intently toward our window. Then her voice floated up to us.

"Where's mother, Aunt Margaret?" she queried.

"She is a trout," I returned.

"I think she went to her room," I returned.

"You're sure she isn't at the front of the house?"

"No, dear."

"All right," she threw herself into a dance pose, gradually wriggled over to the place where she had deposited the necklace, made a swift swoop and picked something up, concealing it in her robe, and a second later she was in the center of the improvised ring.

There she stopped and called to Marion, who was industriously turning another series of hand-springs as a finale to her part of the program.

"This will be the finish of the first part of the entertainment," she announced importantly. "Now, come around to the side of the house where we set up the Wild West show. Come along, Jerry!"

She led the way around the side of the house while Lillian and I smiled at each other over her shouting air. But both smiles were tempered with a look of uneasiness.

Her lovely characteristic which we had seen displayed by Mary Harrison.

"Margaret! Margaret!"

Elizabeth Harrison's voice, raucous, excited, came to us from down the hall, and a second later she had appeared at the door of the room again. For the first time I saw her shorn of her provoking composure. Her face was flushed, her eyes held an ugly glitter.

"I have found out the reason why your maid left so suddenly and mysteriously, Margaret," she said nastily. "She is a thief. My Oriental necklace is gone, has been stolen, and, of course, she has taken it."

"MOTHER! OH, MOTHER!"

For an instant I saw red, and I am afraid I was perilously near to blurring out the truth to her, betraying poor naughty, little Mary to her mother's wrath. Then the habit of years, and the law of hospitality to which we have always done reverence, steadied me, and I replied quietly:

"I am sure you are mistaken, Elizabeth. Kate has been with me for years, and my Yarns and my delusions, she is absolutely honest. I will help you hunt for the necklace, and I am sure you will find it somewhere about the place. You may have dropped it, or it may have become feeble-minded, Margaret."

"Are you insinuating that I have become feeble-minded, Margaret?" Elizabeth's manner was magnificently contemptuous. "I am not in the habit of dropping my jewels."

Her manner suggested a large and valuable collection—"and I distinguish myself by looking into my case before Katie left. I have not taken it out since."

You keep your keys where any one could have access to them, then? I inquired smoothly.

By a certain startled look in her eyes I knew as well as if she had spoken that something had occurred to her which quenched her theory of Kate's guilt. But she is the type of woman who never recedes from a position once she has taken it.

"I keep them where no one but a clever thief could find them," she retorted, then added querulously: "But, of course, I'll make a thorough search for them. You do not object if I go into all the rooms, do you? Katie may have become frightened and have hidden it after she took it, or, of course, there is a possibility that some child may have meddled."

She was looking straight at Lillian as she spoke, but my friend smiled at her as if she had just uttered the most amusing jest in the world.

"Pray take my room first, Madge," she said carelessly, turning to her window and seating herself in a big armchair. And while Elizabeth turned over everything rudely, she watched her with a quiet smiling amusement which I guessed was driving my sister-in-law wild. Elizabeth and I, to the other rooms, and searched them thoroughly. Finally my sister-in-law said decisively: "It's no use, Margaret, either Katie or that Marion has taken it."

Heroines of History

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

by Mark Stamp

How Pocahontas Established an Enduring Peace for Her Tribe.

POCAHONTAS was born in a tepee on the banks of the James river, in Virginia, in 1595. Her real name was Matoaka, but her friends felt that as the favorite daughter of Chief Powhatan she should have a more auspicious name, so they called her Pocahontas.

Chief Powhatan ruled his people and his family with an iron hand. But Pocahontas was the apple of her father's eye, and he loved her so dearly that he more than made up for her every wish was a command. Her requests were always granted.

Because of her influence, Pocahontas, who was a staunch friend of the white people, was able to save many from the shopping block and tomahawk. The most interesting story in the life of the kind Indian girl is how she interceded with her father in behalf of John Smith, a white captain.

Smith was captured by the red men near the home of Pocahontas and taken, half-starved and half-frozen, as prisoner. In great excitement the Indians ran to Powhatan's tepee to tell him how they had caught the "paleface," and how he had fought with them until exhausted. The Indian girl listened with wide-open eyes to the story, and when Powhatan decided that the prisoner should be tried before a council the next day, Pocahontas determined to be there.

How proud she was when her fine-looking father mounted d his "throne," a raised platform, and in his racoon skin "robes" looked about majestically. But Pocahontas was heavily-hearted when she heard the verdict that the white man was to be killed.

Two great stones were placed before Powhatan, and the executioners seized John Smith and placed his head on the stones.

But just as the axe was raised, Pocahontas, with a cry, pushed her companions aside and threw herself over the body of John Smith. Putting her arms around his neck, the 16-year-old Indian girl, with tears in her eyes, begged her father to spare the life of the brave man who had done no harm to her people. This made the other Indians very angry, but Powhatan could not resist the pleading eyes and the trembling voice of his favorite child. John Smith was set free.

From that time on Pocahontas was the idol of the white men. It is recorded that several times she saved white men from treacherous attacks by Indians, for Pocahontas always believed in playing fair, and in rewarding bravery in April, 1614, when the Indian girl was 19 years of age, she married John Rolfe, a splendid white man, at Jamestown.

Hundreds of Indians and white people attended the wedding ceremony, at which Pocahontas was christened Rebecca. From that time on a deep friendship was sealed between the Indians of Powhatan's tribe and the white men. The bonds sealed by the happy marriage of John Rolfe and Pocahontas were never broken, and peace existed ever after with the once treacherous tribe.

SCIENCE INVENTION

Twelve messages can be sent simultaneously over one wire with the latest telegraph instruments.

Aluminum films for motion pictures have been invented in Germany.

All-steel bombing airplanes are constructed in England which are 4 per cent lighter than wooden airplanes of the same dimensions.

The boiling point of lead is 1000 degrees C, that of water 100 degrees C, that of carbon dioxide 80 degrees C, and that of air 252 degrees C.

A new copper process makes it possible to weld together iron and steel parts. The copper penetrates into the fine pores of the iron and forms a firm weld.

Things of Interest

PREPARING BEETS. Always boil beets without cutting so they will not bleed and become tough. When tender put them under cold water until cool enough to handle and then rub the skins off with the hands.

A GOOD THOUGHT. Wet the knife with cold water when cutting lemon meringue pie, and the meringue will not stick and pull from the pie.

THE COUNTRY HOUSEWIFE. Who is only able to get meat when the butcher drives to her home, will tell you to wipe with diluted vinegar the joint of meat that is on the verge of going bad.

WHEN FRYING IN LARD. A teaspoonful of vinegar added to the lard used for frying will prevent the article from absorbing too much fat.

Henry Ford is said to have deposited $2,000,000 in a Canadian bank and then forgotten all about it. Some people are so careless.

Young Alderman—Just imagine, (tho) racially street railway people had the nerve to offer me a hundred thousand to vote for their measure. His Wife—Oh, Henry! I always knew you'd make good.

"Little Kitty is always stroking the cat. Does that signify that when she grows up she will be a lover of cats?" "No, I fancy it means that she will be fond of fur coats."

Census Taker (to middle-aged spinster)—And what is your age, madam? Spinster (coolly)—I've seen just twenty-five summers. Census Taker—How long have you been blind?

Daughter—The preacher just phoned and said he was coming to call this afternoon. Mother—Gracious! We must make a good impression. Give the baby the hymn-book to play with.

Small Boy (to absent-minded gentleman who has been spending the last hour perambulating the park)—Dad, mother says you're to bring the pram 'ome at once. You've forgotten to put baby in.

"What's the matter, dear? You look unhappy." "Oh, dear, married Dick for alimony and then I fell in love with him, and now it breaks my heart to divorce him."

Sheriff—Have you seen any suspicious characters hanging around here? Ku Klux Klandishman—Well, suh, I did see one feller hanging on a tree down the road, but he wa'n't suspicious. He was daid.

The Doctor—Sure, I'm willing enough to prescribe beer for you, but I can't think of any disease to name in the prescription. Mr. Wetmore—Make it hydrophobia, Doc.

10 Minutes to Answer This. It will be observed that the ten little circles are placed that we may count ten rows—vertically, horizontally and in the various diagonals—in which are even totals, 2 or 4.

But that is not the limit of possibilities, so we will ask our puzzleists to find another placement of the circles that will produce the greatest possible number of rows which add up even totals. What is your score?

FOUR WAYS TO MAKE SALLY LUNN.

Sally Lunn.

Soften a cake of fresh, compressed yeast in a cupful of lukewarm milk. Beat two fresh eggs, add two table-spoonfuls of sugar, one and three-quarters of a cupful of rich milk and the yeast. Sift in a table-spoonful of salt and four cupfuls of flour. Beat thoroughly until well incorporated, then add two table-spoonfuls of soft butter and beat it through the mixture. Let the dough rise to double its bulk, then beat it down with a spoon and turn into a well-buttered and warm chimney-cake pan. Let the dough rise to double size again, then put it into a moderately hot oven and bake for one hour. Cover the bread after cooking for thirty minutes, to keep the top from getting too brown, and turn it out onto a plate and serve hot.

Sally Lunn with Potato Yeast.

Add one-half cupful of butter to a pint of warm milk. Sift seven cupfuls of flour with a teaspoonful of salt and a pinch of sugar. Turn the hot mixture into the flour which should have been warmed, then add four well-beaten eggs and a half-cupful of good, lively potato yeast and beat the batter until the dough blisters. Set to rise over night. In the morning add a half-teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a little bit of milk and turn the batter into a well-buttered chimney-pan, let it rise for twenty minutes and bake in a hot oven, covering after twenty minutes to keep from browning until done. Try with a straw.

Sally Lunn with Baking Powder.

Beat the yolks of four eggs, then add a cupful of milk. Sift together four cupfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, a table-spoonful of sugar and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Pour the liquid into the dry mixture slowly and beat thoroughly. Last of all, fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites. Bake in a well-greased, shallow baking-pan or in muffin rings in a hot oven.

Quick Sally Lunn.

Sift together three cupfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, a desertspoonful of sugar and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat two eggs and add a cupful of sugar and three teaspoonfuls of rich milk. Add two table-spoonfuls of melted butter or vegetable fat and beat all the ingredients together. When blended, pour into a well-greased, shallow pan and bake in a quick oven.

DAINTIES FOR THE CONVALESCENT.

It is always difficult to find delicacies that the convalescent will relish when, after the nurse's departure, the home cook is left with this responsibility. Delicacies naturally of the various broths and soft foods given them during their seriously-ill days, and long for something dainty and appetizing, often tempting the cook to disregard the doctor's orders even at the risk of a relapse. But it is best to be very careful. Here are a few dishes which are generally wholesome and approved by the doctor if served in moderate quantity:

Broiled Sweetbreads. Select a fresh pair of sweetbreads, wash them and put on in cold, salted water to boil. Boil twenty minutes, then drain into cold water to firm them, free them from fibre, and slice in medium slices. Dust the breads with a little salt and a wee bit of pepper, then lay them on a buttered broiler and broil over a clear fire, or under the gas flame until they are a delicate brown. Place the breads on delicately-made toast, butter lightly, garnish with parsley and lemon quarters and serve hot.

Lamb Steak. Lamb steak is really the largest shoulder chop, cut rather thick, and with the bone removed. But a small portion of onion and a few chopped celery leaves in the centre, placed the steak on them, after brushing it like a fillet and bringing a thin slice of bacon around it, put more leaves and onion over the top, then dot it with butter and dust with pepper and salt. Cover the dish with a pan and let it cook for five or ten minutes, then brush off the leaves and turn the chop and cook, uncovered, until done. Serve on a hot dish after removing all the seasoning agents and garnish with fresh watercress. A carefully-baked potato is often allowed with the steak.

An Unusual Mother

Ad Schuster

FOR all he was the son of a wealthy man Carl Dillon lived in a garret and was scrupulously democratic. The garret was the studio in which Carl and Sid Watkins dreamed of fame while one painted and the other wrote verse. He felt several years ahead of popular appreciation. They possessed ambition and youth and a hearty enthusiasm for ledgers, offices and regular hours.

"I sometimes feel," said Sid, "if I were to travel in the places where the great poems were born, where civilizations ripened and died, I would like to see him here and know he is happy."

John Dillon thought of the postcard in his pocket marked Florence and of the cable he had sent.

"He will come," he said. "Only be brave and he will come."

At the hospital gate the father gasped in astonishment when he all but collided with his son. He asked no questions of this answer to his prayers, but hastened with the lad to the sick room. "You go in," he said. "She has been asking for you. Anything you say or do, Son, will be all right with me." And Carl too much concerned for his mother, did not recognize the surrender.

Mrs. Dillon looked at her son as if to read his thoughts. "Do you love her, Carl?" she asked. "Are you happy? You must tell me if I am to get well."

Carl nodded. "I have been very happy, except in deceiving you. Nina and I are married, you know, Mother, you will love her."

The unusual mother held the secret until she was strong enough to risk its telling and met surprise at her husband's acceptance. "Carl," he said, "you would be all right, he said. 'Let's send for Carl and Nina.'

They were holding hands when the maid brought in the mail. There was a postal card signed "Carl" and dated Venice. It said, among other things, he was having a wonderful time. The puzzled elders were looking at the card when Carl entered.

"Here," he said, a day later, "are tickets for the other side of the world. This is fixed. You are to be gone a year. I will expect you to write me, or your mother, each week and to keep out of trouble." He looked at the angry young man across the table and said, "Dillon jaw which hinted at no surrender."

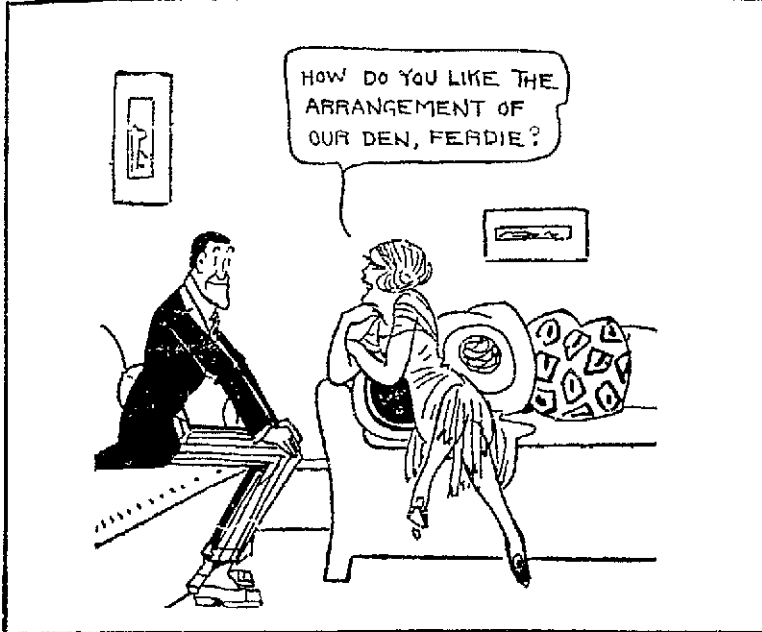

"You will thank me," the father said, "but you will thank you won't, but you will."

Uncle Wiggly Stories

UNCLE WIGGLY AND SAMMIE'S JUMPER

UNCLE WIGGLY was hopping along through the fields one day wondering what sort of an adventure he might have, when all of a sudden he heard some jolly laughter just behind a grassy bank.

"Hum!" whispered the rabbit gentleman to himself, with a twinkle of his pink nose, "that doesn't sound very scary. It sounds very happy. Of course it may be that the bad Purzy Fox or the Woosie Wolf, laughing as they think of nibbling my ears—but let us hope not."

"I'm going to hop up very softly and look over the top of that grassy bank," said Uncle Wiggly to himself. "If it's the Fox or Wolf, I can hop away again—that is, if they don't see me."

"But if it's one of my friends I stay and have a laugh with them. There's nothing so much fun as laughing and being jolly in this world."

So Uncle Wiggly peered over the top of the grassy bank and looked down on Sammie Little-tail, the rabbit boy, who was sitting at the bottom of the bank on the other side. And Sammie was laughing as hard as he could laugh.

"This is strange!" thought Uncle Wiggly to himself. "It's Sammie, all right, so I don't need to be afraid. But why should he be laughing all alone? If he had some of the animal boys and girls with him, and they were all laughing together, I could understand that. But it is queer for Sammie to laugh all by himself."

Just then Sammie gave another chuckle of delight, and shouted: "Ho! Ho! Ha! Ha! Tee-hee!"

"I wonder if he has a fever, and is out of his head?" thought Uncle Wiggly, for once he had been that way himself, and he had laughed when there was nothing to laugh at.

But, a moment later, as Sammie laughed again, Uncle Wiggly looked more closely and he saw that the rabbit boy held something in his paws. It was something that jiggled and joggled about, and the more it jiggled and joggled the more Sammie laughed—all by himself.

"What have you there, Sammie?" suddenly called the rabbit uncle.

Sammie looked up so suddenly that he nearly dropped what he had in his paws. Then, as he saw Uncle Wiggly, the little rabbit boy spoke and said:

"Oh, I'm just playing with Jack."

"Jack who?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Jumping Jack," laughed Sammie. "Oh, you ought to see the funny things my Jumping Jack does when I pull the string! He jiggles his arms, he jiggles his legs and he kicks like Bully No-Tail, the frog."

"Oh, ho! So it's your Jumping Jack you were laughing at, is it?" asked Uncle Wiggly. "Well, I'm glad I found out." Then the bunny gentleman slid down the bank to where Sammie sat and Uncle Wiggly watched Sammie pull the string of the little jointed wooden man called "Jumping Jack." And Jack certainly did some funny ticks. Uncle Wiggly himself had to laugh out loud.

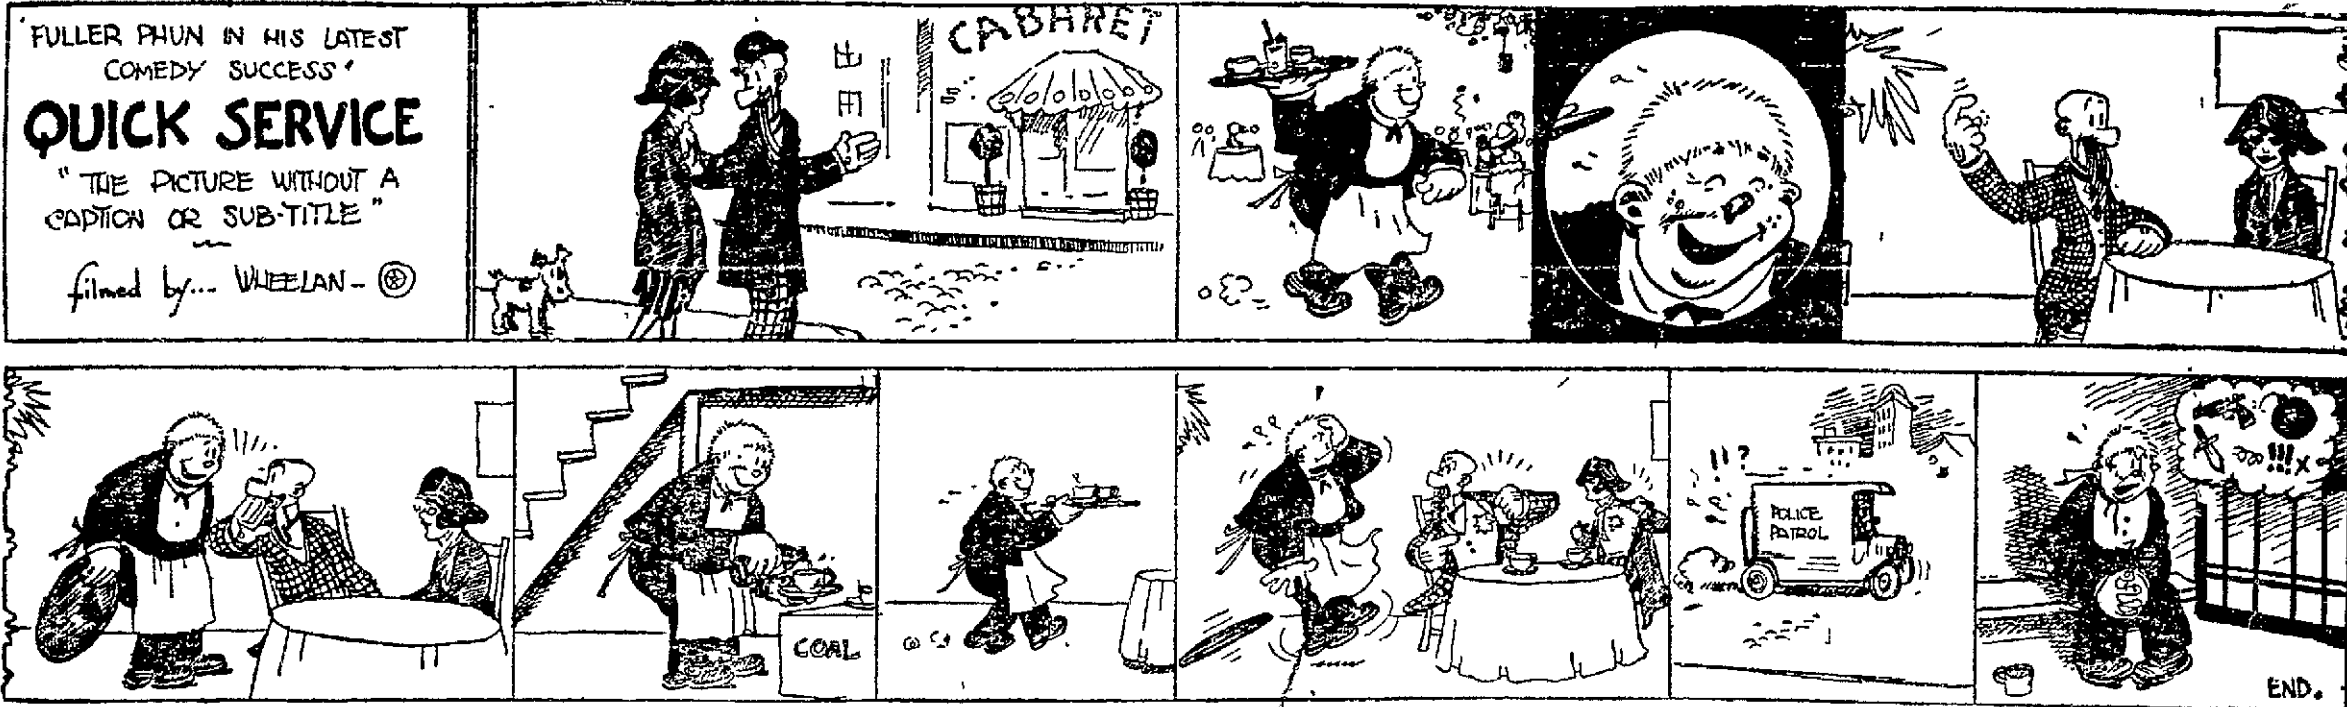

"Where did you get your Jack?" asked Mr. Longears.

"I saved up my pennies and bought my Jumping Jack at the toy store," answered Sammie.

"Look! He almost stood on his head that time!"

And Sammie's Jack certainly did. Well, after Uncle Wiggly had watched for a while, and had had several jolly laughs with Sammie, the bunny gentleman hopped on to find an adventure.

He had not gone very far before, all of a sudden, he reached the house where Uncle Butter, the goat gentleman, lived. Aunt Lettie, the goat lady, stood in the door, looking very sorrowful.

"What's the matter, Aunt Lettie?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Oh, Uncle Butter is very ill," said the goat lady. "He has lost all his appetite. Why, I even brought him in some lovely scraps of paper from a circus billboard—pictures of parts of elephants, lions and tigers—and he wouldn't eat the least bit!"

"What's the matter with him?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Oh, he's just gloomy and sad," answered Aunt Lettie. "He needs cheering up, I guess, and—"

"Wait a minute!" suddenly cried Uncle Wiggly, as he hopped away. "I know the very thing to make him jolly!"

Uncle Wiggly hopped back to where Sammie sat, still playing with his Jumping Jack.

"Bring that and show it to Uncle Butter!" said Mr. Longears. "I want it to make him laugh as it made me laugh."

So Sammie stood in front of the ill goat gentleman, pulling the string of the jumping toy. Jack stuck out one leg. Uncle Butter smiled half a smile. Jack flung one leg up toward his head as Sammie pulled harder on the string. Uncle Butter smiled the other half of a smile.

"Watch this!" cried Sammie. He pulled the string a little harder and Jack tossed up both his arms, held his head on one side and then began to dance a jiggy jiggy jig.

"Ho! Ho! Ha! Ha! Tee-hee!" And this time Uncle Butter laughed aloud.

"You're cured!" chuckled Uncle Butter.

"I'm hungry! Please bring me some paste pudding, Aunt Lettie. And he ate it all up, and then he bought a Jumping Jack for himself to cheer Aunt Lettie in case she ever became ill. So after all, you see, Jumping Jacks are good for something else than hanging on Christmas trees. And if the rag doll doesn't try to cover herself with a sheet of paper and catch cold in her saw-

YEARBOOK GIVES WHEAT HARVEST'S ECONOMIC STATUS

Entire Situation From Seeding to International Trade
Presented in Publication.

One of the outstanding facts facing the American wheat grower is that while population and per capita consumption of wheat in the United States have steadily increased, there has been a gradual decrease in per capita production according to the United States department of agriculture. Wheat is a world commodity and the international economic future both of national and international character must be carefully considered to forecast the future.

The economic situation of the wheat crop, production and marketing from seedling to international trade is discussed in the 1922 yearbook of the department of agriculture. This discussion is the result of combined research and study by a number of the nation's leading agronomists and agricultural economists connected with the department. It is illustrated with numerous maps and charts so that it is clear to those without special training in agricultural economics.

MUCH WHEAT GROWN.

Among the significant facts preshelved it is shown that nearly a third of the farmers in the United States are engaged in growing wheat areas more than 50 per cent of farmers are engaged in wheat growing. Only corn and hay exceed this crop in acreage occupied, and normally only these two crops and cotton exceed wheat in value. In leading wheat areas whatever the price, not only the production of wheat, but the only affects the welfare of the farmers who grow the crop, but the whole community. Similarly the wheat crop as a whole has much to do with the prosperity of the nation, because the grain enters into foreign trade to a greater extent than with other crops except cotton. This country has exported a surplus in every year of its history since Colonial times with the exception of 1836, besides keeping pace with an ever-increasing demand at home. During the past 20 years, however, the volume of exports has been decreasing except under the artificial stimulation of the recent war period. Wheat production has been increasing less rapidly than population, and this tendency will probably continue, at least for some time, when we consume practically all we produce. Because of improvements in milling processes which make bread more attractive, because of increasing prosperity, and because of the increasing proportion of our population living in cities, the demand for

CITY CONSUMES MORE WHEAT.

CITY CONSUMES MORE WHEAT.
It is certain that city dwellers eat more wheat per capita than those who live in villages and in the country. There are a number of reasons for this—the lack of gardens in cities, the comparative cheapness of bread, and the fact that cooking is required. That no home food is required is the first of the trend of population movement is toward the cities should have a bearing on the future consumption of bread.

How much wheat will we eat if we can get all we want?—is asked. Before 1850, the per capita consumption in this country was 3.8 bushels; from 1875 to 1934 it was 4.9 bushels; from 1895 to 1914 it was 5.6 bushels. The rising trend was interrupted by the World War, but department authorities believe it has been resumed. How much longer will it continue? In Belgium and France consumption has reached 5 bushels per year per person.

If we are to increase our bread

If we are to increase our bread ration to any great extent we must grow more wheat, the department says. We did grow more during the war, but the increase was partly at the expense of well-balanced rotations and other principles of sound farming. As wheat prices advance, concludes the department, "production can be increased through the use of more fertilizer and the farming of less productive land. As production and consumption tend to be-

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—New high levels for the year were established at the opening of the cotton market today on a renewal of a heavy general demand. Final prices were 23 to 28 points higher with December selling at $24.43. Later this position sold up to $24.47, but subsequently reacted in sympathy with other commodities. Profit-taking and increased hedge selling from the south. Foreign interests, particularly Liverpool, were buyers. And many of the commission houses and wire houses which had reentered the market last week, began to

NEW INDUSTRIAL STANDARDS BEING ESTABLISHED NOW

Terms 'Now' and 'Normal' Are Said to Be Becoming Synonymous.

By Consolidated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—New standards are being set in prices and conditions are being set up today in a dozen different industries. Normal, as a term of comparison, for some years has been taken to refer to the period before business was affected by the war and its aftermath. At present, however, "now" and "normal" are becoming synonymous. That is, conditions in business, commerce and industry in the United States have stabilized to such an extent that present conditions represent a state which will be "normal" for some time to come. This is especially evident in the packing industry, according to telegraphic reports today from the great packing centers. Experts in meat products and livestock declared today that present wholesale meat prices are just above the level which will constitute a new normal. That may be variable, but it is fairly safe to figure present prices as the future standard.

The last three months have constituted a profitable period for the packers. The demand for meat products of all kinds has widened and has become stronger with its broadening. Operating expenses of the packing plants have been reduced and operating conditions generally have reached a fairly stable basis. It is doubtful, packers assert, whether the profitable operations of the late months of 1932 will compensate for the unprofitable conditions of the past year, especially as regards pork packing.

EXPORT BUYING BETTER.

The export buying market has improved, following a betterment in some of the exchanges and an increase of productive activity in Europe. England is buying meat in large quantities. Continental Europe has been buying fats for two months and lately has come into the market for other provisions.

Reports from widely repackaged sales prices of meats in this country will remain steady for the two months with practically no possibility that price levels will drop before the end of the year. Retail prices of meats have never retreated in proportion to reductions in the wholesale price and with the strong demand now existing it is entirely likely that there will be a strengthening of retail prices. These, however, as always, will be governed by the quality of goods demanded.

The fact that inquiries on foreign account are coming in more rapidly and in far greater volume than at any time since the war is cited by provision men as the best proof that present wholesale prices represent real values. Beef in cold storage at Atlantic coast ports has been reduced fully one-half in some instances as compared with last year.

WOOL STOCKS LOW.

Stocks of wool are extremely low and the leading woolen goods manufacturers are combing the Texas and New Mexico ranges for clothing grades and paying high prices direct to growers. The fur industry is booming. Nearly a million more skins have been dressed this year than for a similar period of 1931, and the demand for the Christmas trade is flooding furs with orders. Lumber production is up to 98 per cent of normal and white boats will be below par and new business are being attracted to difficulties of transportation rather than to a slackening of demand for railroad and building construction purposes.

Candy manufacturers are hard put to it to keep up with the demand for the holiday trade and practically all of them are working overtime for the first time in two years.

DETROIT

By PHIL S. HANNA.
DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 30.—Approximately 700 automobiles are now being transported either on their own wheels or by boat in order to avoid tie-ups through railroad transportation.

About 3,000 cars a week are going by boat from Duluth to Chicago, Buffalo and other lake ports and from 10,000 to 15,000 are being shipped by rail. The boats, being privately operated, are not classed as common carriers, and are making direct trips. The boats call for operation of the boats until ice prevents and many vessels will operate after all government navigation aids have been removed.

Call for ten-cent sizes of popular cigars has been so strong that many manufacturers are unable to supply their customers.

PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 30.—Public improvements in this district will reach a large scale next year. In addition to improvements already financed, citizens will vote at this election on bond issues totalling $3,050,000 in communities in this county outside of Pittsburgh.

ST. CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Cleveland plants are trucking their produce to outlying railroad stations some distance from the plants in order to secure immediate shipment. This practice has seldom been followed since the destruction of industrial spur tracks in this section.

PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—The construction of dwellings has not caught up with demand today and 1933 will surely see a continuation of home-building in large volume here. Members of the building trades continue well employed at high wages.

POTATOES.
ST. PAUL, Oct. 30.—State officials announced today that the potato crop of Minnesota would total approximately 23,560,000 bushels, making it the largest potato producer in the union. Thousands of bushels of tubers are being freed because of lack of freight cars.

TWENTY-FIVE ARE HURT IN WEEKEND AUTO ACCIDENTS

Woman Run Down While Leaving Church and May Die.

Twenty-five persons, including an aged woman who is probably fatally hurt, are suffering from injuries today as a result of weekend automobile accidents in the bay region.

Mrs. Rose McNamara, 63 years old, of 1182 Guerrero street, San Francisco, was struck down by a motorcyclist last night as she was leaving St. James church, near Twenty-third and Guerrero streets, that city. The cyclist sped away after hitting her. She was unconscious and taken to the Mission Emergency hospital, where it was found that she was suffering from a fractured skull and will probably die.

Nicholas Kosich, 133 Winfield avenue, San Francisco, who is said to have struck the aged woman and abandoned her, was captured by an ambulance crew from the Mission hospital after a chase of more than twenty blocks. He was turned over to Sergeant Suttman at the Mission police station and charged with driving a motor cycle while intoxicated and falling to render aid to his victim.

AUTO IS STRUCK BY TRAIN.

Struck by the north-bound Lark, the Southern Pacific company's motor train to Los Angeles, J. F. O'Brien, 222 Haight street, San Francisco, and his mother, had a narrow escape from death yesterday. The accident occurred at the Bayview crossing in Burlingame. Mrs. O'Brien was cut by flying glass on the face, and her son was slightly bruised. Falling to see the approaching train until he reached the crossing, O'Brien swerved the auto to the right of way in the same direction the train was traveling.

After running down and injuring Edward Dale, 549 Thirty-fifth street, and Miss Genevieve Weldon, 703 Thirty-third street, both of San Francisco, as they stepped from a street car at Seventh street and Broadway, Oakland, an unidentified man stopped his machine, and fled from the scene of the accident on foot. Both of the injured persons received cuts and bruises, and were treated at the emergency hospital. About an hour later Frank McGue, driver of the machine, walked into the police station and gave himself up. He is being held for investigation.

THREE MIXED IN COLLISION.

In a collision of three automobiles at Post and Gough streets, San Francisco, Mrs. TUSE SUJOKA, 5638 California street, was injured. She was riding with her husband, James Sujoka, when their car was hit by a machine driven by Roy Castle of San Jose. Unable to get out of the way of a third machine, driven by Arthur Serper, 1640 Buchanan street, San Francisco, crashed into the other two cars.

FRANK CORDIERA, 233 Fifth street, Oakland, was hurled to the pavement and sustained a fractured shoulder when his automobile was struck by an electric train at Seventh and Castro streets. Mrs. Amy Byrne, 32 Eighth street, who was in the machine when it stopped in the way of the train, was uninjured.

When he lost control of his automobile late last night at Seventy-third avenue and East Fourteenth street and it plunged into a telephone pole PHILIP WILLIAMSON, 1619 Grove street, Berkeley, and three other occupants of the machine received cuts and bruises. The others were MISS ROSE and MISS LORETT BUCKLEY, 1041

MISS CHARLOTTE MOORE, who will aid in directing benefit dances at sororities.

"NICKEL DANCE" WILL AID FUND FOR SORORITIES

BERKELEY, Oct. 30.—The novel stunt of dancing nickels into a scholarship fund being established by the Pan Hellenic Society, composed of all university sororities, will be experienced tomorrow night in college circles.

The first "nickel dance" ever sponsored by the sorority body will be held at the various sorority houses. In order that campus regulations may be upheld dancing will be allowed only between 7 and 8 o'clock. The same program will be repeated Wednesday night. Both dances will help raise the $400 set as a goal in the scholarship fund.

Miss Georgia Towle is chairman of the dance committee, while the following other sorority women are in charge: Reception, Helen Connor; music, Zoe King; arrangements, Eleanor Beck; tickets, Charlotte Moore; publicity, Maile Vicens; scholarship fund, Loretta Street.

Legion street, Alameda; MISS VERONICA WITTUSSEN, 1911 Everett street, Alameda, and ROBERT ARDING, 1737 Grand street, Alameda.

AUTO STRIKES STREET CAR.

A crash between an automobile and a Municipal car at Eleventh and Mission streets, San Francisco, early today resulted in the painful injury of three men, all of whom were taken to the Central Emergency hospital. Those hurt were: Anthony Botale, 46 Jackson street, broken jaw, severe lacerations; Harry England, 3742 Geary street, cuts and bruises; George Hughes, 3742 Geary street, cuts and bruises.

Traffic Officer LEON SOLON of Niles received a broken right leg when his motorcycle on which he was pursuing a traffic violator collided with a machine driven by Mrs. Phoebe Armsby of Niles, wife of Dr. A. E. Armsby. Solon was taken to the Hayward county hospital.

HARRY ENGLAND, 3742 Geary street, ANTHONY BOTALE, Albert Hotel, and GEORGE HUGHES, all of San Francisco, were cut and bruised last night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a street car at Eleventh and Mission streets, San Francisco.

VISITOR IS INJURED.

J. E. Wheeler, 28, a visitor in the bay region from King City, is recovering from injuries sustained on Saturday when the automobile he was driving was struck by another car driven by Dr. Lillian Shields, 4120 Gilebert street, Oakland, at Durant avenue and Dana street, Berkeley. Wheeler sustained cuts on the head which were treated at Temple hospital. Both machines were damaged.

THOMAS LIPMAN of 36 Germania avenue, San Francisco, suffered a fractured skull in a collision of two automobiles at Fulton street and Central avenue today. Lipman, driving a car of the California Baking Company, collided with the machine of C. L. Wither, 118 Downing street. He was treated at the Park Emergency hospital, San Francisco.

SAN JOSE, Oct. 30.—HENRY HILBERT, 580 O'Farrell street, San Francisco, was seriously injured last night when the automobile in which he was riding with his cousin, Walter Snyder, of the same address, crashed into the rear end of a truck trailer about six miles south of here. Snyder escaped injury.

BAY IS HUNTED FOR VICTIMS OF TRIPLE DROWNING

San Francisco bay, in the vicinity of the Marin county shore, was being searched today for the bodies of Fred W. Schumann, Albert Martignoni and Enrico Allegrini, all of San Rafael, who were drowned when boats capsized yesterday.

Martignoni and Allegrini were fishing when their rowboat turned over in the heavy sea. Schumann, who was a past president in the San Rafael parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West, saw their accident and made for the scene in his skiff.

He succeeded in pulling one of the men from the water when the other grasped him around the neck and upset the boat, and the three perished. On the shore, half a mile away, Albert Nauert, Schumann's brother-in-law, saw the tragedy, but was unable to render any assistance.

Broadmoor Folk For Andrade Site

SAN LEANDRO, Oct. 30.—A delegation of San Leandro residents of the Broadmoor section, led by Fred Russell, civic leader of the city, attended the meeting of the Oakland Board of Education in a body this afternoon to present arguments favoring the establishment of the proposed junior high school on the Andrade property.

The group met at the Washington school and were transported to the Oakland meeting in several machines obtained for the occasion.

Berkeley Couple Will Celebrate Golden Wedding

BERKELEY, Oct. 30.—Fifty years of happy wedded life will be celebrated on November 5 by Mr. and Mrs. William C. Asman, 1203 Alcatraz avenue, with a reception to be held for a large number of guests at South Berkeley hall, 3138 Grove street. All of the children and grandchildren of the Asmans will participate in the occasion.

November 5 also marks the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Bergman, 1737 Parker street, the latter a daughter of the Asmans. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bergman will assist with other members of the family in receiving the many guests bidden from both sides of the bay. The Asmans were married in Germany in 1872, and have lived in Berkeley since 1906, prior to the latter date making their home in San Francisco.

MINERS' KIN RELIEF FUND IS NOW $2072

The total amount contributed to date for the families of the Argonaut mine disaster victims now stands at $2072.25. It is announced that the committee in charge of the collections in Oakland of which Harold Katschinsky is the chairman.

A contribution of $5 was received today from Mrs. Ella McQuillan of Gilroy, Cal.

The moneys are forwarded through THE TRIBUNE to Mrs. Mary Warrington, president of the Red Cross at Jackson, who, with her fellow directors, sees to it that the funds are laid out to the best advantage of the widows and their children.

CANVASS BEGUN TO AID DISABLED VETERANS OF WAR

Canvass of the leading business houses of Oakland on behalf of the Oakland Chapter of the Disabled Veterans was started today when teams representing the War Mothers, the Veterans of the Foreign Wars, the Sons and Daughters of Washington, the Waterhouse Chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion Auxiliary took the field. It is believed that all of the leading merchants can be visited by Wednesday and then the teams will visit Alameda and Berkeley. Individual contributions will be asked on Saturday when "Forget-me-not Day" will be observed and forget-me-nots placed on sale on the streets.

It is the intention of the Citizens Committee formed for the purpose of assisting the disabled men in their campaign for funds thoroughly to cover the entire eastbay district during the week in order that the quota of $10,000 asked may be obtained by Saturday evening. Offers of assistance have been received from practically all of the leading civic, fraternal, commercial and patriotic organizations.

Deputy District Attorney Donald McClure will present the case of the disabled men before the Ad Club at its luncheon tomorrow and the Lions Club at its Wednesday luncheon.

Daniel Lawrence, past commander of the Oakland chapter, has secured permission to address the student bodies of the various high schools during the week. Esther Kosht and a corps of Red Cross nurses who served overseas will accompany Lawrence and tell of the experiences of some of the

Welfare Society Seeks Homes for Two Girls

BERKELEY, Oct. 30.—Two girls—14 and 15 years old—are "homeless" in Berkeley.

An appeal was today made by the Berkeley Welfare society through Miss Cecil Mossbacher, children's agent, for homes for the two girls.

For the 15-year-old girl a home is desired where help could be given about the house or in caring for children in return for room, board and clothes, and the privilege of attending school. This girl, according to Miss Mossbacher, is too old for the county to pay for her support under existing regulations, and it is desired that she be given a chance to secure a good education to fit her for caring for herself later in life.

men whom the public is now being asked to assist.

Among the workers who are to participate in the canvass of the business houses are Mesdames Lydia Wolf and E. Kelly, representing the War Mothers; Mrs. F. Harley, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars; J. Langtry, representing the Sons and Daughters of Washington; Mrs. A. Volkman, representing the Waterhouse Chapter of the Veterans of the Foreign Wars; and Mesdames Moore, Towbridge, Wallace and Wolf, representing a general committee appointed by civic, fraternal and patriotic organizations to assist in a general capacity.

"We didn't call it charity when our soldiers gave their legs, arms and eyes and I do not feel that this campaign should be classified as an ordinary charitable drive," declared George Sheldon, chairman of the Citizens Committee yesterday. "Let every business man who is approached this week remember

"She is a good companion and a girl whom anyone would be glad to have in their home," says Miss Mossbacher.

Compensation of $17.50 per month will be allowed by the county for the 14-year-old girl. It is desired in this case to secure a home where the girl might remain after county aid ceases. This child, Miss Mossbacher points out, is a half-orphan and free for adoption. Of her she says:

"She is a sweet and attractive girl and should go into a very good type home."

Miss Mossbacher will give further information concerning both girls at her office at 2120 Grove street, telephone Berkeley 8484.

Burglars Raid Four Homes in Berkeley

BERKELEY, Oct. 30.—Four Berkeley homes were entered by burglars over the week-end and loot valued at almost $1000 taken. The homes entered and the losses are:

P. H. Luther, 3300 Claremont avenue, jewelry and miscellaneous articles, $500; Mrs. Anna Lewis, 721 Peralta avenue, $50 in jewelry; Q. D. Langworthy, 1561 San Lorenzo avenue, clothes, $50; Mrs. F. K. Gunn, 2511 Woolsey, $50 in money.

From the U. S. Cafe, 2028 Shattuck avenue, $196 in money was taken.

CALENDARS IN CRIMINAL COURT MUST BE CLEARED

Characterizing the present superior court criminal calendar as the "worst in years," and announcing that it must be cleaned up at once, Judge T. W. Harris, as presiding judge of superior court, today issued an order that all cases would hereafter be tried on the date set, and there would be no postponements.

This action was taken to dispose of the approximately 35 cases which are now on the calendar.

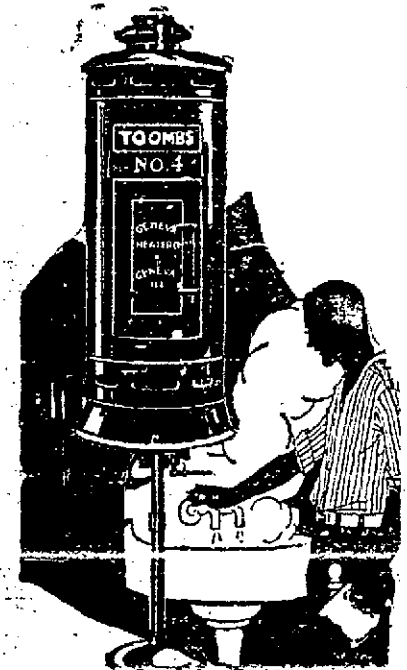

Judge Harris declared that criminal cases would be given the preference over all civil suits, and that when two criminal cases came up on one day, two judges would be secured, from outside the county if necessary, to try them.

"There has been too much delay," said Judge Harris, "and I intend to clean up this calendar."

There are at present six superior judges for the trial of civil suits and two for the hearing of criminal cases in the county.

The first criminal case as a result of the judge's order was started today, with no postponement granted, and was that of King Mendoc charged with a statutory offense with a young boy as the complaining witness.

No human hand except that of his beautiful daughter Queen reached Alexander Quist, Oakland millionaire, in his study on the fatal morning---yet he was murdered by a sinister unseen force before the very eyes of his butler and in spite of the savage dog that growled and whined from fright. Read the answer to this great society-detective enigma in "THE QUIST MYSTERY," by George C. Henderson, starting next Sunday in The OAKLAND TRIBUNE.
